

HOMECOMING

Spirit Week ended with the same excitement with which it had begun. Not only did our football team provide us with a victory at the game, our student body presented us with a new Homecoming Queen.

Three candidates were nominated from the senior class — Wendy Litchfield, Kelly Ferguson, and Becky Bennett were the lucky girls. It was not until halftime of the game that our curious minds were satisfied. The 1986 Queen, Melody McGinnis, returned to crown Miss Becky Bennett as our new 1987 Homecoming Queen of John C. Calhoun Academy.

The football team provided us with a great victory over the Hurricanes of First Baptist. After the game the team celebrated by going to the Homecoming Dance sponsored by the Junior class. There were decorations of balloons, football helmets and megaphones with the football players and cheerleaders names on them and streamers.

Homecoming, a tradition at John C., is more than just dressing in crazy costumes. The tradition includes the real coming home, of alumni, friends, and family, to share in a spirit of pride in academics and athletics.

The spirit of the school is exemplified by Drew Brightwell as he heads the WarHawk tunnel, through which the team will enter the field.

What's Homecoming without a bonfire? These seniors find it a time to share close friendships and bond in raising spirit.

Have we reverted to the hippie age? Not if this is really Matt Hiott in disguise, displaying his alter ego for fans at the bonfire.

Too close for comfort? The senior sponsors were almost part of the game a few times due to their seating within the gates of the field.
