

A NEW TEAM IS BORN

Varsity Boys have a good season after "rebuilding".

The Varsity Boys basketball team, who was coached by Danny Parnell, worked very hard throughout the 1988-1989 season and managed to finish with a 9-12 season. The team had a lot of work on their hands from the very beginning. All of the starters plus some other very good players from last year had graduated. The Varsity Boys had to completely rebuild and to find a group that could perform well together.

The Hawks started the season with approximately fifteen players and ended the season with only ten players. At the end of the season, there were four Seniors, five Juniors, and one Sophomore. They lost many players for various reasons. Injuries were also constantly hampering the Hawks. Starter, Eric Bennett, had an ankle injury that kept him out for the majority of the season.

The Varsity Boys rode on a roller coaster throughout the season. They would win a few and then lose a few. However, many of the games they lost were within reach. They just lost them in the last few minutes of the game.

The Hawks were very often out-sized by their opponents. This meant that they had to work extra hard. The team used their experience, speed, and sheer desire to their advantage. They had many talented players and were the Varsity Boys definitely had their ups and downs, but all in all, it was a good season.

Kevin Crosby, only a Junior, is an excellent outside shooter. He puts the ball up again with perfect form to give the Hawks another two points.

*Our strongest point is our ability to play together as a team. —
