

Practice Makes Perfect

Curtain Call

"It makes no difference how old or how young you are, you can always enjoy a good theatrical show", says Miss Meenach.

The ambitious students who are Southwest's accomplished Thespians lead very busy lives. Besides studying the theories and practices of the theatre, they plan and put on plays during every yule-tide season, and for the freshman and P.T.A. meetings. The freshmen enjoy two treats during a year's time, for Dramatics One has a special production for them, besides the Christmas play.

Miss Meenach supplies her Dramatics One classes with pantomines and comedies, while her Dramatics Two students spend much of their time on tragedies.

Who said Dramatics classes were afraid of hard work? They even bring out the hammer, nails, pliers and paint to make all of their own scenery. They plan all of their stage sets and make the costumes needed for their performances.

A highlight of this year's activities was Miss Meenach's excursion with twenty-six of her students downtown to see "The Diary of Anne Frank."

Success at Last
