

LEARNING

Term papers, science projects, and math assignments . . . all these were stitched together by the teachers to form the fabric of the mind. In the continual growth process, this mind was stretched and altered by ideas, presented in subjects ranging from first grade arithmetic to advanced biology.

