

EPILOG

The growing complexity of each day increased the need for forming lasting ties. The fabric of student life was strengthened by learning and by brightly colored threads of friendship. The greatest strength did not lie simply in the learning process or in the friendships; the greatest strength came in the unification of all the moments of growing. Now the threads have begun to unravel, but the strength of the fabric is not lost. Each individual will continue to grow — ever adding to the tapestry of his own life.

