

Participating in the life of the community was the final touch of only one movement in each student's song. Working part-time and being active in church and community affairs not only broadened their lives but also aided the entire community.

