

- SEC. 42. I, Dorothy Stroman, do hereby will and bequeath my unusual nose to Catherine Sprott.
- SEC. 43. I, Clarence Thomas, do hereby will and bequeath my place on the football team, plus a two hundred pound weight, to George Cohen, hoping that with the aid of the latter he will be able to accept the former.
- SEC. 44. I, Irving Thomas, do hereby will and bequeath my blue eyes to Marion Buckner, hoping that she will never be asked "Brown eyes, why are you blue?"
- SEC. 45. I, Gladys Tuten, do hereby will and bequeath my speed at the typewriter to Anna Bell Copeland, hoping to help her to get in a few more words of communication with her neighbors in study hall.
- SEC. 46. I, I, James Ward, do hereby will and bequeath my athletic ability to George Price.
- SEC. 47. I, Jean Wichman, do hereby will and bequeath my wonderful disposition to Carolyn Tindall, realizing that she will need it very much next year, if she continues to take Latin.

JEAN WICHMAN, Class Lawyer.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON

Dr. D. M. Douglas, President of the University of South Carolina, delivered the Baccalaureate Sermon Sunday, May 26. His talk was both inspirational and interesting. He selected the seventeenth chapter of St. John, using the following verse: "I have glorified Thee on earth; I have finished the work which Thou gavest Me to do."

Each year one church of the town selects the speaker for the sermon to the graduating class of Walterboro High School. This year the Presbyterians had this honor. Dr. Douglas is a speaker of merit and the people of Walterboro are indeed gratified in having him speak to them.

The Seniors received new inspiration from his splendid address; and it is felt that they will profit by his advice. The graduating class feel that it is only on the threshold of greater things; and if it has finished successfully thus far the work that has been given to it, this will make a firm background for the greater tasks it must meet later on, and that in the end of life each one can say with St. John, "I have finished the work Thou gavest me to do."

CLASS DAY

At five o'clock P. M., May 29th, 1929, the first class day exercises in the history of the Walterboro High School was held. The entire Junior class carried the wonderful daisy chain, which they had woven with so much care and skill. They sang their class song as they marched and also sang some songs to the onlooking seniors.

Next the senior class gave their class day play, "The World Outside," in which was woven class songs, poems, history, will and prophecy. The class historian in her intercourse with Old Father Time prevailed upon him to turn back the veil of time and reveal the history of the class. This he obediently did, starting from the beginning of their high school days. As those who had starred on the athletic field were mentioned they appeared for a moment in their ancient, battle-scarred uniforms, and the thrills of bygone games lived again for a moment, then faded back into the tender land of memory.

A large dirigible in the shape of a huge diploma was lowered and the class mascot, representing "New Life," stepped to the front of the stage with a message, which was read by the class prophet. The diploma was unfolded and the class prophecy read by Father Time, as each person was mentioned they appeared in the background dressed as the characters the future was supposed to hold in store for them.

The class lawyer then read the last will and testament. All the outgoing class as-