

Senior Class History

"In like a lamb and out like a lion" might well describe the aurora of elation which the Class of '69 as freshmen felt. Introduced into high school we climbed onto a higher plateau which commanded the best that we could offer. No longer would assignments be repeated nor work poorly done be accepted; as freshmen we learned that in order to be a success in life we must have as a background a solid education.

In high school we found the fundamentals for a basic education; however, responsibility, teamwork, and leadership were stressed in equal importance. The leaders of today realize that for a better tomorrow, we, the leaders of the future, must be so experienced that whenever problems arise they can be handled rationally and efficiently.

Becoming adjusted to a larger school memorizing schedules, and learning, where classes are all enhanced our aspirations. The newness of these daily rituals soon died and became the humdrum of every day at school. As sophomores our class faced monetary problems which had to be overcome. Through Saturday car washes and bake sales our financial ratings began to rise.

As Juniors we were granted more opportunities which would enable us to use the knowledge and experience we had perfected. Highlights of our Junior year were the Halloween Carnival and the Junior-Senior. The latter which produced the fantasy of "Somewhere My Love," a prom which will not soon be forgotten.

As Seniors there is much that we need to impress on the underclassmen. Being a Senior is much more than just completing four years of high school, it carries with it the responsibility of leading the student body and setting an example which they will be proud to follow. High school, like a testing ground, prepared the mind and body. Our personalities, outlooks, and habits are molded and then reshaped again that we might be the best individual possible. Now, having received the best training we face the realities of the world. We have learned in high school to meet each challenge calmly and with a determination that will enable us to overcome any obstacle that confronts us. With this as a conclusion, we say good-bye to "Good Ole W. H. S." reluctantly.
