

May Happenings Entertain Students

May was filled with many special activities for students. The yearbook staff sponsored a party May 17 in the school cafeteria. The 1974 Paw Print was distributed that night. Students who bought yearbooks were admitted free while the unfortunate students without a yearbook receipt were charged admissions. Food, drink, and music were part of the celebration. Over 400 students and teachers exchanged and signed yearbooks. A special cake was cut and shared by the yearbook staff and they surprised Miss McIntyre with a gift, a black modern lamp.

The following week the Student Council sponsored a dance during the lunch break. Seniors were taking exams that week and there were few members of Class of 74 remaining after third period.

Students gathered in the gym to dance to music played on public address system record player.

The final celebration took place the last day of school, May 31. Students had returned to pick up their report cards. After homeroom they went to the gym to look over photographs put on sale by the yearbook staff. Hundreds of pictures were taped to the gym walls and students gazed at wide selections of faces.

The big finale was when the bell rang ending the year 1973-1974.

IS THIS FOR ME? Deborah Jackson, Virginia Youman, Bonnie McLauchlin, Wes White and Ann Burch watch as Ms. McIntyre unwraps her gift from the yearbook staff.
