

Behind the Scene Look Reveals

"Alright, alright, whoever's trying to yank my towel off better cut it out!"

"Pink polka dots!"

"How do you keep it from falling down?"

"Lavender posies*&?!"

"My towel won't stay tucked in*&?!"

In a spoof on PLAYBOY and other magazines mentioned by students, the WHS baseball team was kind enough to pose for this rather risqué centerfold.

The decline of girly magazines sales had the publishers of these enterprises in a near-panic. Hugh Hefner's Playboy empire is on the verge of bankruptcy due to poor management and the decline of the popularity of public interest. However, the clothing industry was thrilled with this development. Less skin showing meant more clothes covering the body. With the increased amount of material being used, more mills were working. More seamstresses were employed to sew the garments. Less nudity meant shorter employment lines.

The few hold-outs against clothing did not save any money by going about with no clothes. All the savings from abstaining from the wearing of garments were spent on higher heating bills, sunscreen lotion, and bubble bath. After all, you can't go around with ring around the collarbone.

Pictured: Nickie Smith, Mark Herrin, Jackie Ramsey, Tony Smith, Melvin Williamson, Mike Drawdy, Robbie Robertson, Casey Price, Burt Bazzle, Nick Pinckney, Wes White, Billy Smoak, and Brady Howe.

