

SAT, College And Class Rank Concern Seniors

One senior to another, "See ya' Saturday!" "What's Saturday?" "The SAT. Don't you remember?"

Saturday, December 7th, seniors were back at WHS trying to defeat the Scholastic Aptitude Test once again. Knowing the cut-off point for certain scholarships or college admission put additional pressure on a number of students. Others were interested in improving scores they received on the tests they took last spring.

College Night, December 10th, provided students an opportunity to examine colleges, universities, technical schools, and the Armed Services. Representatives from all over the Southeast brought catalogs, slides, and films for their presentations. Many students gained new ideas. Others became confused.

There was also another concern among the seniors. Class rank was calculated at several times throughout the year. Seniors taking academic subjects were given an additional five points. Those taking advanced subjects, advanced English or advanced Algebra and Trig, had ten points tacked on to their grade average.

After these adjustments were made, all semester grades were averaged and rank was determined by Mrs. Gaskins.

As Ms. McIntyre points out where the cheerleaders are to line up, Donna Balish takes advantage of the situation by posing for the camera.
