Express Yourself In your Own Way

Creativity came in many forms. For some it was making a plain sheet of paper a beautiful piece of art work. For others, it was adding modern dance steps to pop music.

Art was taught on two levels Art 1 and Art II; also an art appreciation course was taught for a half unit. Students worked with oil and water paints, chalk, clay, colored pencils and ink. "Art gives me a way to express myself and increase my talent", said Buri Risher.

Included in the physical education program were basketball, ping-pong, bowling, volleyball, weightlifting, dancing, football, handball, badminton, softball and various exercises to tone the entire body. The way one played a sport often lets him express himself. I work hard in physical education because fitness is very important to one's health state.

However you chose to express yourself, it was fun, educational, colorful, and healthy.

Creating their own version of a still life are Deborah Thomas and Felicia Winfeild.

Warming up before basketball are Kenneth Bridge and Tina Carden.
