

Socializing Saturday night are Laura Bell, Pam Zygodlo, Wanda Webster and Todd Johnson.

After the Prom

It was a tradition with many students from Walterboro to go to the beach after the prom and spend the weekend. Immediately after the prom, they went home, got their clothes and changed. Although many went directly to the beach, some met at Dairyland or Sonic and formed a caravan to Edisto Beach.

Most of Friday night was spent talking to their friends and having a good time. "We stayed up talking with each other and our chaperones until about 4:00 a.m.," said Faye Barwick.

Saturday was a beautiful day. Everyone either swam, basked in the sun, or played football. Saturday night was a party filled evening. It was a night to have a good time and socialize.

Sunday, after staying up all Saturday night, was a day of relaxation, except for cleaning up the house and preparing to go home. After everyone was packed and the house all cleaned up, everyone went down to the 'wash-out.' The 'wash-out' was at the end of the beach and is supposedly the best stretch of beach. About 4:00 p.m., everybody left the beach and headed back to reality. Junior-Senior Prom was over and the students had to live through 4 more weeks of school.

A beach house bunch watches the action from their porch.

Posing for a picture are Laurie Holloman, Jeff Wren, Faye Barwick, Teresa Smith, Christa Gilgen and Jeff Caldwell.

