

Pigging Out

Everybody does it occasionally

Usually after church on Sunday evenings, Angie Valentine heads for McDonald's for an apple pie.

Everybody pigged out at one time or another because it was fun. Holidays were the perfect time for pigging out, but the most popular time was when one was bored. Terri Goff said, "I pig out every weekend at Burger King." Other popular places to pig out were McDonald's and Pizza Hut, but the most popular place was at home. Whether one was watching T.V., listening to the radio, or talking on the phone, food was nearby.

Terry Harvey lends her helping hand, making it much easier for Terry Jones to pig out.

Even though the lunchroom was not the best place for lunch, hundreds of students ate there, without seeming to mind the lack of variety. Most students ate hamburgers and french fries everyday. Other students chose the long order or a salad.

Vanessa Aiken said, "My favorite pig out food would be . . . a whopper with cheese." Other favorite pig out foods were pizza, Big Macs, french fries, and Doritos.

No matter what students ate, pigging out was definitely an important part of our lives.

