

Taking a break at his party to give his dog some attention is Robert Cuzzone.

Lights Out, Music On

It's Party Time

"Parties are a blast," said Brady Ordell. Whether there's a small group of close friends or nearly the whole town, parties were one of the highlights of a teenagers life.

Lots of food, little light, loud music and many friends were the essential factors for any successful party. They danced all night, gossiped with friends, and got to know a lot of people. Parties were a time when you loosened up and forgot about the past week at school. Anthony

Brown said, "I like a party when the music is so loud you can't hear yourself think."

Students had parties at friends' houses, the Jaycee Hut or at the beach. Some students partied at Bailey's or other night clubs. People of different ages and schools got together just to have fun. Audra Thomas remarked, "It's like being in a different world, there's so much more to do and it's all so exciting."

The parties ranged from very classy formals to original 'punk-outs'. Teenagers usually let themselves go and thought of the zaniest outfits to wear. Eric Clark said, "I like partying with my friends because we can cut up."

Wendy Bashnan expressed how many teenagers felt about parties saying, "I live for parties especially the big ones."

Nicole Varnadoe and Alicia Pringle dress as Boy George at a recent party.

