Going for the goal

This year the Walterboro Soccer team set three goals for themselves; to win more games than last year, to defeat any new teams in the conference and to give every other team a run for their money. All of these goals were accomplished in the best season ever for Walterboro soccer.

Coach Williamson, who played soccer for ASU in college, tried to instill in his players the same drive and determination to do their best as his coach had in him.

The soccer team received more support from the community as the sport caught on. Many loyal fans braved the cold to watch the team in action.

Three players from the squad were picked for the all conference team: Garrett Carter, Rolfe Martin, and Grover Owens. Grover Owens just barely missed making the all area team also.

Since soccer became a major sport in our conference, it was good that the Walterboro soccer team became an established squad that other teams could not take lightly. This could be attributed to a fine coach and a hard playing team.
