

True Blue

Webster's dictionary defines a friend as "a person whom one knows well and is fond of." While this is definitely an accurate definition, many students had much more to add.

"I can tell her anything, and she is always there for me," said freshman Joey Stanfield of his best friend, Allyson Pooser. This statement exemplified the trust that was needed in a friendship.

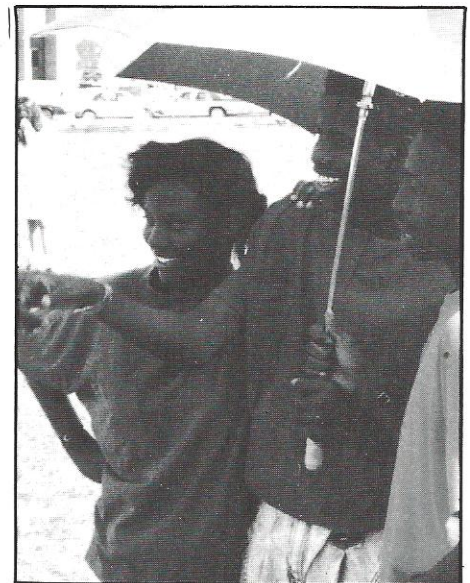

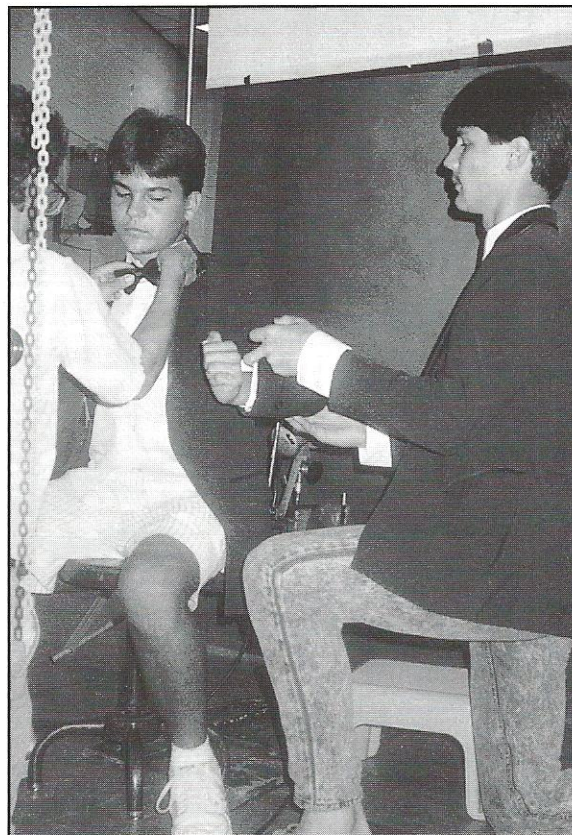

Junior Thomas Shider said that he and his friend James Daniels "bailed each out of trouble."

"Dayna is always there for me when I need her, through good times and through bad times," said freshman Tonya Gibson of her good friend, Dayna Dandridge.

Freshman Lydia Harrison says that her best friend, Noelle Berry "is definitely not sweet, but she is always looking out for me, and I know that she'll always be there."

A friend stood by his or her companion through thick and thin. When times were rough, friends were there for a shoulder to cry on. When everything seemed to be just right, friends were there to share it. They were always there. All one had to do was call.

— Bramlett E. Easterlin

A group of friends stands under an umbrella to stay out of the sun during P.E. Friends often shared moments like these

While taking senior pictures, Jody McLaine holds Barry Evans' arm in place for his picture. Barry dislocated his shoulder and broke his arm playing a game of "backyard" football.