According to Coach Cathy Layton, the Walterboro Lady Bulldogs "worked hard" and throughout the season attitudes were "very enthusiastic." The team spirit was always high even though the team seemed to be facing a slump season. The team continued to push to do its best.

The Lady Bulldogs practiced many hours after the last bell of the day rang. Practice consisted of perfecting not only techniques, sprints, and other exercises but also building up spirit and working on communication. Throughout the season, every person proved to be a dedicated member of the team.

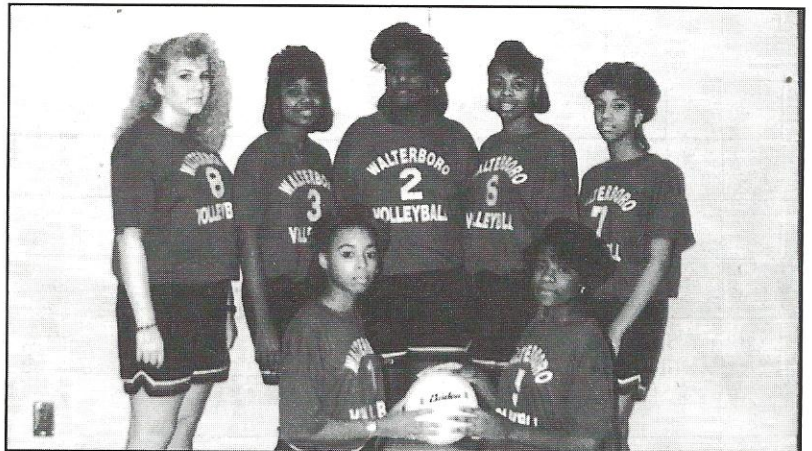

The Lady Bulldogs often played with few people in the bleachers to cheer them on, yet they played for themselves and worked even harder. This showed that the spirit of the team, with encouragement from Coach Layton, never dropped.

The edition of a junior varsity team was a welcomed change. The J.V. girls practiced and played side by side with the Varsity team in many matches. During the season, the J.V. team won some incredible victories over Summerville and Branchville.

Overall it was a great season for the Lady Bulldogs. With the addition of the J.V. team there should be some very experienced and well developed volleyball players for next year's team.
