

Pumping it up

The new school year began with a bang. The Athletic Booster Club and the Band of Blue Booster Club sponsored an unusually unique fund raiser to be held at the stadium. Titled "Bulldog Blast," this event included USC's Athletic Director King Dixon as the featured speaker and music by Bedrock.

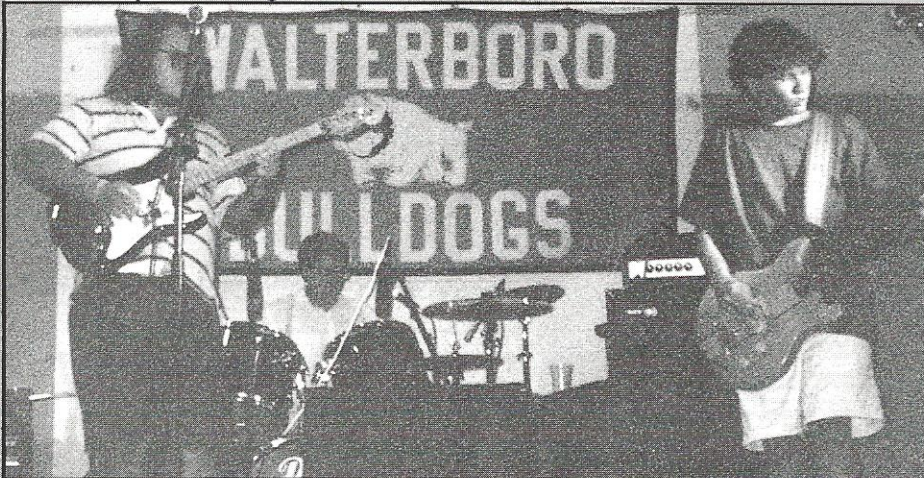

However, on the projected date of August 23, it rained. The show had to be moved to the WHS gym, which in turn confused a lot of people. Nobody was sure if the event had been cancelled, postponed, or moved. Needless to say, although the Bulldog Blast was well attended, the expected turnout was not present. Among those in attendance were former WHS football stars from decades ago.

It all began with some tunes from Bedrock. This up and coming band consists of four Walterboro natives. Henry Hiott is the singer, his brother Matthew plays the guitar, Duke Hipp is the drummer, and Billy Howard is on base. They have been together for seven years and have an album to show for it. Entitled "Parker's Ferry," this album exhibits the alternative style of music they create. Bedrock began the show with popular tunes from other artists and then moved to their own music. The response was positive — the number of albums sold are proof of this.

King Dixon took the limelight next. He shared with WHS faculty, students, and alumni many of his experiences since becoming Carolina's Athletic Director.

For the grand finale, the WHS varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders displayed their skills in a dance.
