MONEY DOESN'T GROW ON TREES!

What can I buy next?

"I never have enough money!" exclaimed sophomore Ashley Murdaugh.

Spending money and earning money was a top priority for most students. As some students had to work for their money, others could just ask their parents for it. Work was optional for a lucky few, but there was always the unfortunate few that did not have that choice.

"I spend way too much money on things I don't need," said junior Gareth Avant. Many students have the same problem. Teens always needed extra money for their weekend entertainment fund, while some had fun on their days off, others worked.

Money taught students responsibility and respect. "I don't think it is a great idea for students to have a job and try to go to school because most students aren't mature enough to do two things at once," said Mrs. Susan Nettles.

Some students had no choice but to get a job. A few earned money for college while others had parents to run to for money.

"I have to help pay my way through college because my parents said that I have to learn responsibility, so I will be working while I am at college," said senior Jaclyn Grigg.

Money was a big part of every student's life. No matter what, students never had enough money.

As teens get older, they realize that money does not grow on trees.
