

Unlimited Action

Showing off hard work leads to a tremendous success by turning back the hands of time.

Baseball, a national pastime, is loved by man, including the boys at WHS. The guys on the baseball team were outstanding. They practiced for at least three hours on certain days to achieve their individual goals. "Practice pays off by being there and the more you practice the better you will do at a game because practice made perfect," said sophomore Rusty Davis.

The baseball coach was Coach Kennedy along with Coach Ritter as his assistant. "The boys on the team were very young, but they were awesome at what they played," said Coach Ritter.

When the season started there were hills that some players had to jump over, which was the big "N" word nervousness. Freshman Richard Beasley stated, "The first few games were nerve racking at times, but then I got use to the tricks of the trade, which made my nervousness turn into something fun."

They lost some games against teams like Stratford, Summerville, and Fort Dorchester, but their loses did not stop the Dogs, they were longing for the playoffs.

The varsity boys baseball team showed that they were fighting machines against Battery Creek and the Beaufort Eagles.

The Dogs had a tremendous win over the teams, which proved that a team that showed respect for each other could restore their reputation because they were dedicated.

"This sport is an excellent sport to play because it was a challenge for me," stated Freshman J.W. Bishop. Like all sports, the season came to an end. The guys ended their season with a winning last game though.

"Winning the last game against Hilton Head 10 to 13 left a mark for the seniors to remember, since we did not win a lot of games," said sophomore Jim Iademarco.

The teammates and the coaches were not playing around. They were out for a dose of unlimited action, which they achieved.

-Tyeesha Davis

Just a tap at the plate. Senior Jarus Lee is gone with the wind during a play. He was looking to his corner to see if there was anyone out there who could harm him, while in the process of running to the home plate to show off his victory. "I am going to miss clowning around and being a positive leader. I think we waited to late to start winning," stated Jarus. He was the center and a pitcher as well as a team player.