

Q: What made you interested in participating in the event and helping the community?

A: My grandfather has cancer and that made me feel more prone to help others because you never know when something might happen to you or someone you love. It makes me feel happy knowing that all the money we raise is going to St. Jude's.

Walk this way. Senior Latoya Bryant, president of the Health Occupation class, starts one of many laps around the track. She opened the ceremony with a speech and things took off from there.

Hot chocolate anyone? Not only did the students raise money for St. Jude's Hospital for Children, they also waited in the cold for hours before they had any electricity to heat up the snacks on the track field. A lot of the people who participated in the walk-a-thon were students who took the occupational health class at the vocational school.
