ound And Determined

Becoming a Senior is every underclassman's dream. The Class of '95 was no exception. This year's Senior Class has something special that not many preceding graduating classes have ever had. Most of the students filling out the Class of '95 have been together since kindergarten. A special bond much like that of a family exists between these eleven students. This closeness makes graduating very special to each of them. A mixed blessing of accomplishment and regret, of excitement and sorrow. The responsibilities of choosing a career, a college or taking the final SAT lay heavy on these Seniors but not as heavy as their hearts as they contemplate saying their final farewell.
