The talkative (or chatty) class of nine, three girls and six boys, are academic achievers with their own opinions. Participating in sports and other school activities, they strive to excell.

Josh Barnes described the Ninth Grade as being on the "verge of." They are on the verge of driving and have compiled class stats as to who will have their license first, second, ect. David Walling has the distinction of being "first."

When asked if they feel "caught in the middle" responses varied! David Walling questioned why they are in Jr. Beta Club if they are considered to be in high school? Tracey Jones wishes they could help decorate and serve at the prom like the Sophomores.

They are pleased that they now have the opportunity to participate in both JV or Varsity sports.

Ninth Graders find high school very difficult. You have to apply yourself to some serious study.
