

ATTENTION TO ORDERS

Cadets listen to the adjutant, listen to their instructors.

Much as a teacher imparts information in his efforts to educate, so the adjutant, in posting of orders, furnishes information during a dress parade. Man is an inquisitive creature, endlessly questioning and constantly acquiring knowledge. And where there is an inquiring student, there must be a willing teacher.

The educational process includes, basically, the student, the teacher, and the information to impart. A sound education is a reasonable goal for every cadet to strive for and the CMA academic program includes teachers dedicated to making this goal attainable for everyone who has the desire — or the capacity — to respond to persistent external motivation — to learn.
