

EYES, RIGHT!

In any military organization individuals express their respect by placing the honored member to the right. A faculty member always walks on the right of a cadet, an officer stands to the right of his platoon. In much the same way, such precepts of mutual respect govern not only the mechanics of a parade in someone's honor, but also the interactions between cadets in their military and in their student lives.

The final stage of a pass-in-review concludes with the command, "Eyes, right!" We salute you.
