Volume 31

We're back . . .

On track at Camden's AMTRAK station: Mike Aaron, Damon Edmondson, Gregg Marlatt, (Rob Whitmire's legs), Will Rice, Eric Gadlage, David Stepp, Jay Thurston, Mark Herron, JJ Campbell.

... on track.

Cadet life is like scheduled journeys that trains take. Cadets, however, have flexible life goals, trains only destinations to reach. It isn't easy keeping either one on track.

Some of us got sidetracked last year. Discipline was down and drug infractions and disregard for authority cost us heavily in lost leadership and in student numbers.

The battalion's now on track, but to keep it there takes direction. An expanded commandant staff is on board and has us rolling toward definite destinations, individually and as a corps. We're on track again, pulling together and looking out for one another. Morale's up and discipline's heightened. The system's go. We're back on track.

Student life is structured. Seven days a week bugles signal reveille and taps and regulate activity between. But busy as the schedule is, cadets find time for recreation and leisure too, on campus and in the surrounding Camden community. During a time for fun, Brad Mullins demonstrates his skateboarding prowess to recumbent 1989 Class Clown James Dyal, while Randy Watts, Jon Felice, and Will Rice share the moment vicariously.

Student Life

Summer 1988 wound down, as summers will, and our CMA family reassembled from far corners of the globe to trigger the start of a new school year. Newsworthy world affairs reordered themselves. While interest in Latin American and Middle Eastern military and political confrontation cooled, concern heated up over the environment.

Global warming, the greenhouse effect, took on immediate importance as the whole planet felt the heat last summer. Worsening the environmental crisis is the depletion of the ozone layer. Scientists now fear that the very foundation of the food chain, disruption of plant growth and the process of photosynthesis, may already be upset. Carbon-dioxide loads, chlorofluorocarbon residues and forest destruction have pushed the world's life-support system to the very brink of breakdown. Toxics, smog, and acid rain problems compounded themselves and remain largely unresolved. The specter of AIDS grimly evidenced itself in hospital waste, syringes and tainted blood-testing jetsam, which appeared in coastal waters and washed up on sea beaches.

Gloom, however, was not universal. While our contemporaries, according to media reports, may be preoccupied chiefly with the triple C's of crack and crime and casual sex, the three R's occupy us here. New faculty and staff complemented old stalwarts, the Baldrige SAT Preparation Course became an optional addition to the curriculum, and alumni giving permitted a sevenfold increase in scholarship awards. An expanded Military Department affords closer cadet direction throughout the battalion with a tactical officer assigned to each company.

Physical change is most notable in the disappearance of the firing range, which stood on county property, and the erection of a new air terminal, with direct access from US Route 1, only a few feet from the former range site. Work crews completely renovated faculty apartments opposite Band Company and thinned and limbed stands of longleaf pine which dot the campus.

Summer switched to autumn. Presidential election campaign and Discovery and Atlantis countdowns held our attention, and XXIV Olympiad competition in Seoul brought the world together. In a media extravaganza, the US and USSR combined to save two of three California gray whales stranded in pack ice off Port Barrow, Alaska. That cooperative effort was prelude to the immense new challenge of managing what may be the last stages of the cold war and of inventing a new economic and political world role for the United States.

For all these happenings, singer Bobby McFerrin crooned background music, his number one single "Don't Worry, Be happy." At CMA we were back and on track.

Polo and Planes

don't mix.

Camden Military Academy is bounded by US Route 1, the Maine to Florida highway, now only an alternate for traffic on I-95—Main Street USA—and the Kershaw County Airport. CMA facilities include World War II structures built for Army Air Corps flying school use, renovation of which reflects a transformation from temporary wartime construction to fully renovated, substantial buildings. This year the county built a new air terminal for Woodward Field, the most significant addition to the facility since wealthy sportsman Ernest Woodward donated land for an airport in the 1920s to discourage pilots from landing their planes on his polo field, now part of Springdale Racecourse.

The City of Camden attracts tourists in numbers and is a mecca for horsemen, but principal interest in the town for the average cadet is the predictable fare at Burger King and McDonald's. Pictured here are scenes shot in the community, beyond self-contained CMA. Top left, then clockwise: Eric Gadlage and Will Rice stride toward fast food heaven, DeKalb Street, Camden. Col. Risher leads the Pledge of Allegiance during dedication ceremonies for the new airport terminal, October 1, the color guard proudly in attendance. Mike McCoy and Dana Lunsford preflight their Cessnas before the new terminal. Bertram Firestone, owner, watches excitedly as Mike Boiter and Scott Serpas assist Carolina Cup Racing Association Director Dale Thiel in placing a blanket of carnations over the neck of 1988 Colonial Cup winner Jimmy Lorenzo, Jonathan Smart up, November 27. It's a road not taken for Eric Gadlage, Ted Dailey, Evan Samli, and Jim Denton, just beyond the parade field.

On a crisp October morning at Dusty Bend, Mark Herron, Gregg Marlatt, and Rob Whitmire head for a warm welcome at Wal-Mart.

Sunday school's coming up next for Ted Dailey, BJ Lathan, and Dana Lunsford, pictured after nine o'clock services at historic Bethesda Presbyterian Church, designed by Robert Mills, best known for his Washington Monument creation.

Broad and DeKalb Streets are the crossroads of Camden. JJ Campbell, Rob Whitmire, Mark Herron, Will Rice, Gregg Marlatt, Eric Gadlage, Mike Aaron, David Stepp, Jay Thurston, and Damon Edmondson disregard the traffic signal as they charge south on Broad.

Shaping up

is part of the program.

Developing the body as well as the mind is a goal for every cadet. Twice-weekly PT sessions are on the regular activities schedule. After a warm-up period and calisthenics, running and intramural sports exchanges follow, both for having fun and for countering academic pressure or frustration. All cadets report for PT formation, but those participating in a current intermural sport proceed from there to the gym or practice fields for their training.

Individual physical training is serious business to some who stay in shape by running year-round. Specific goals, such as participating in the annual spring Special Forces Survival Run, five grueling miles across the adjacent airport and over The Camden Hunt's foxhunting country, motivate serious competitors.

Spring and fall, swimming is popular and the weight room is always busy for those who seek to go beyond just staying in shape, pumping iron to build more powerful and more impressive bodies. Shaping up physically's an important part of the CMA program.

the Hotspot

Free time is precious for cadets and leave usually means either sleeping or relaxing with food. Harvey Peeler, Chris Huntington, and Charlie Beam (photo right, then clockwise) relax at the Hot Spot, a just-barely-off-campus quickstop on Route 1. The trio heads in for their break, stopping at the checkout for quarters. At Carlisle House, CMA's on-campus canteen and recreation center, Chris Bearden, Scott Arnold, and Chad Mangum battle it out at Foosball. In the back at the Hot Spot, Chris guides Harvey in the intricacies of video gamesmanship while Charlie goes it alone.

Moving forward

Return to CMA was a dose of culture shock: procedural change, increased barracks supervision, modified rules and regulations, stricter haircut standards, a stringent PT program, sharper guardroom detail, weekly mandatory bed stripping — all, of course, to get us back on track.

Take a look around. On the road from Carlisle House and along the parade field, at the guardroom and around the phones, cadets wear military or PT uniforms exclusively. Hair is shorter, not blocked, and cadets on duty in the guardroom wear dress fatigues, with white webbing and dress hat. Assigned to each company is a tactical officer who affords continuous intermingling of staff and cadets, much like the advisory system at West Point. The "Tac Officer" inspects and disciplines his company, working on a one-on-one basis to solve problems more effectively.

Rules, which were sometimes bent or stretched, are enforced. The schedule of merits and demerits is set, unlike previous years' five for one ratio, so that one merit cancels one demerit. In addition, the handbook limits civilian clothing and establishes weekly bed strips — which raised eyebrows initially — requiring every cadet to strip his bed and send out his sheets to the laundry. Saturday Morning Inspections (SMI) are both inside and outside.

The slack has been pulled out of the system. Change is moving us forward, back on track.

Service staffs perform outstandingly.

Keeping the corps running requires effort by many cadet staff members. Here they are in action (right, then counterclockwise): John O'Neil with his finger on the M1903 action for the benefit of Lewis Sharp. Chet Lightcap, Taylor Rion, Ian Osborne, and Marc Ely perform weapons maintenance tasks.

Mrs. Helen Feltham, Recreation Center Director, explains tournament mechanics — chess to foosball — to Kevin McDaniel and Gary Spencer. Carlisle House is a relaxing place, and these folks guarantee that atmosphere.

Military clerks review individual cadet records, here Douglas Eader, Andres Valdano, Bret Burnikel, Ted Ulrichsen. Under the clock, Chris Reinman, Kevin McDaniel, and Mike Worsham insure the accuracy of duty rosters, lists which are vital to smooth operation within the corps.

The Supply Staff issues brand newboy Jamie Flanagan full uniform — cap to shoes — and more. Ernie Small and Julio De La Guardia, record; Blair Sims, checks items of issue; and Todd Ramella, Supply NCO, and LTC Stephen Mowe, Supply Officer, insure proper dresscoat fit.

Pictured in the middle, Cadet Gregg Baxter, cool and unruffled behind the wheel of a CMA van, provides transportation for town trips. As a driver, Gregg moves many of the corps, to church, on town leave, for medical appointments, and more.

Life is what you make it and Spartans have enjoyed a rebirth of spirit — as depicted, often high — here at Camden. Suspended moments in time include Cadet Morgan, dining hall KP (far left), erupting from the kitchen, tray in hand: "Hello! My name is David. I'll be your waiter today."

(Continuing counterclockwise) The sergeant-of-the-guard maintains cadet accountability in the dorms during study-hall evenings. Here, Taylor Rion, Eric Putman, and Nick Medina check out for the library with clipboard-wielding Derek Whisenhunt, "C" Company SG. The signal's loud and clear. Louis Baker sounds formation "fall-in."

Like an apparition from a Greek past, Spartan Mike Hargett reaches out to Lonnie Broome as modern day spirits Chet Lightcap, Jon Felice, Mike Yount, and Eric Story (back) ready for gridiron action. On this day, their spectator enthusiasm contributed to victory over Waccamaw Academy, 29-0.

At the fall Visitors Day hop, Eric Gadlage and Crystal Lane sit one out. The gym is the scene for the dancing.

Cadet Mark Pressley, tablehead, promotes a spirit of sharing between diners Ken Davidson, James Kaiser, Jon Starratt, and (foreground) Kevin Pohlman. Mrs. Bessie Davis and her staff serve three meals every day, family style.

(In the middle) Allow me! Damon Edmondson, Eric Gadlage, and Ted Dailey are having fun but miss the message at the entry to Carlisle House.

Alpha Company

Senior Chris Huntington, asked about "A" Company, puts it succinctly: "It is simply the best company." Newboy senior Marc Ely says, "'A' Company is Honor Company, and even if I didn't help make it that, I still am proud to be in it. And why shouldn't I be proud? It's my home this year." "We are perfectly located, close to all major activities," advises Ivan Greenwell. Patrick Davidson states that "A" is the best company by far, echoed by Mike Hargett's boast that "A" is sharpest and, "We teach the newboys in a way that they get it through their heads that we are the baddest, sharpest, and cleanest company." Prescott Jordan feels, "Everyone cares about what goes on. We can always have a good time." According to Ted Hughes, "Waking up in the morning and walking on carpeting instead of tile floors is a good indication of how great this company is. I believe that the friendships that bond 'A' Company are stronger than in any other company."

Baron Lewis evaluates it: "About any other company, I just say, 'A nice place to stay, but I wouldn't want to live there.'" Of Alpha Company, Neil Jackson says, "It's a real brotherhood."

Bravo Company

"My company is 'B' and 'B' stands for big and bad," states Allen Watford. Ian Osborne advises, "Our taste in music ranges from Led Zeppelin to L. L. Cool J and everything in between." Enjoying their catholic taste in music is LTC Harry Woodmansee, whom Lewis Sharp describes as: "The person who provides the icing on the cake, our Tac Officer. He's special and important to our company because he doesn't rule with an iron fist, he leads with a smile and a kind word. We have leadership, cohesiveness, and good relations among us." Scott Haskell indicates: "My company is the best company on campus. Bravo Company has produced more officers than any other company on campus.

This very year all of the officers on staff came from 'B' Company. I have been in Bravo for five years and would rather turn in my rank than move. We are all one big family, everyone looking out for one another. That is what makes Bravo so great."

Todd Kaminer says, "'B' Company is the best in the whole battalion. We stick together as a team," which Ken Newcombe describes as "a brotherhood of Bravo." To Ted Dailey, "B" is one big happy family and, "We act like fathers and brothers to each other." Vince Minelli sums it up: "Even though everyone says his company is better, it's only talk. 'B' is best."

Charlie Company

"We are like a family," Steve Robinson says of "C" Company, echoed by Ron Landers: "My company is the essential home away from home environment, the best you could ask for. We all treat each other as a family." Spence Benham is realistic about that family life in "C": "With different people come different living habits. Some snore at night. Some toss and turn during the night, still other have insomnia."

Jon Felice has a different perspective: "I've lived in all four companies and 'C' is definitely different from the rest. With the highest altitude of all, 'C' is the coldest in winter and hottest in summer. Being the tallest barracks, we have the best view for watching parades and the girls who come into the 'circle' to meet guys." The physical attributes may be the best, emphasizes Ashley Saulnier: "'C' Company is the only one entered via stairwells. We are located in a convenient position on campus, close to the snack bar and not too far from anything else on campus. A real plus is the elevated view of Woodward Field, which is spectacular!"

Justin Campbell, Company Commander, rationalizes: "Though we may not have carpeted floors and panelled walls as some of the other companies do, we take it as it is and call it home." Brad Mullins distills the gist of all this: "Members of companies in the battalion state that they are the best. Charlie Company is the best. We may not be perfect, but we are not far from it."

Band & Staff is a place apart. Dana Lunsford, senior, reflects: "We live as a family, a family of friends. We live together, eat together, and go to school together. It's something special to me, something you see nowhere else. It's an unusual place because we all share something in common, the ability to play a musical instrument."

"'Q-land' is located on the southeast end of the campus, just seconds away from the phones and the bus to town, but only a whisper from where the commandant sits in his office," advises Mike McCoy. "It houses talented cadets and holds good fellowship." Damon Saunders says, "I think of my room as my castle. Band is luxurious because it has beautiful carpet and spacious bathrooms with a spotlight on each mirror which makes everyone feel like a star."

On the Staff side, Battalion Commander Will Rice observes: "Without the battalion staff the corps would be in chaos. Staff is always willing to have their fun and games, but when it is time to do their assigned tasks, they perform them seriously and with eagerness." David Stepp, Adjutant clarifies: "We live in the band barracks and try to uphold the traditions of the band. We stay laid back, but when we work, we try our hardest and hope to serve all well. Staff is composed of the finest." Andres Valdano describes staff members as, "The few, the proud."

Spartans charge onto the field, on track for their season opener, a resounding win over Waccamaw Academy.

Sports count here, and they're a virtual athletic smorgasbord—baseball, basketball, cross country, football, golf, soccer, tennis, track—and not just for serious jocks. Although more than half the corps lettered in intermural sports this year, everyone gets into the fitness act. Weekly PT and intramural sports programs mesh with voluntary jogging, running, and weightlifting, which afford everyone physical training at whatever level or by whichever route he chooses. Spectator activities add another dimension for participation, guaranteeing something sporting for everyone.

Sports

A bumpy start

The team got better on the year.

Coach Eric Boland knew the road would be bumpy in the early going and that his football team would get better as the year went on. "We played the top schools on our schedule all at the start of the season," Boland said. "Those schools finished first, second and third in the league."

After a disappointing 1-8 season last year, the Spartans returned to the gridiron with a new attitude. Despite having to replace 14 starters and having only two weeks to practice, CMA rang in the new season with a 29 point victory over Waccamaw Academy. Runningback Evan Samli rushed for 106 yards and two TDs. Neil Jackson returned a fumble 29 yards and Ron Landers caught a 13 yard pass to complete the scoring.

Next for the Spartans were the Hammond Skyhawks who were on their way to a state championship. Led by all-state quarterback Chad Wood, Hammond used an explosive passing attack to obtain a 41 point lead. Quarterback Happy Taylor connected with Landers for a 76 yard touchdown to avoid the shutout. A week later, a strong Heathwood Hall blasted CMA 41 to 0.

In Thomas Sumter's homecoming game the Spartans jumped out to a 6-0 lead on a flea-flicker from Lonnie Broome to Landers that covered 30 yards. Another Spartan TD was called back by a penalty. But TSA scored to 22 unanswered points to secure the victory.

At Wilson Hall's homecoming, the Barons broke open a close game with 34 second half points. The lone bright spot was an 86 yard kickoff return by Landers that accounted for CMA's points.

The Spartans returned home to face archrival Asheville School. Led by Greg Baxter's receiving and Broome's running, CMA was ahead 8 to 6 at the half. But the Blues came back to score late and intercepted Taylor's pass with 30 seconds left. A 40 yard reception by Baxter with less than a minute left was called back on a penalty. Final score: Asheville 14, CMA 8. Christ School, in a continuation of that weekend's journey to the mountains, exploded for 14 third quarter points to beat CMA 32-6. Taylor scored for the Spartans.

After six straight losses, CMA went to Bamberg to face Andrew Jackson Academy. The Confederates recovered a fumble and scored early in the first quarter, but it was the only good thing they would do. A fearsome "Mad Dog" defense sacked the quarterback five times and completed four interceptions. Davidson made three sacks and Jackson intercepted two passes, both of which set up touchdowns. Wide receiver Ron Landers enjoyed his finest game of the season. He returned a fumble 40 yards, caught a 70 yard pass, and returned a kickoff 80 yards, scoring three TDs. Final score: CMA 38, Andrew Jackson 20.

With a forfeit win over Hilton Head

Prep, the Spartans journeyed to Asheville for a rematch with the Blues. Asheville scored on their first possession, but from then on it was a defensive battle. CMA's defense, led by Ted Dailey, Billy Dial, and Mike Aaron, held Asheville School numerous times. With five minutes left in the game, Happy Taylor connected with Landers for a 60 yard Score. Samli rushed for the two-point conversion to give CMA an 8-6 lead. This time it was CMA who intercepted a pass in the last minute. Aaron, with the interception, sealed the Blues' fate. The Spartans finished 3 and 5, the best CMA record in five years.

Bright spots for the team were: Landers finished third in the state in receptions and set a school record; Taylor threw for over 500 yards on the season; Dailey had 13 primary tackles vs. Andrew Jackson; Broome rushed for over 60 yards in his first game as quarterback. Coach Boland concluded, "We really came around at the end of the year and played well."

Defense!

Sums up the season.

Defense! sums up the JV football season in one word. The junior Spartans held the opposition scoreless in two games and to an overall season average of less than 10 points per game.

First home game of the season was a nail-biter against Heathwood Hall that had to go into overtime to determine the winner. After holding Heathwood to no gain, the Spartans scored on the first offense play with an Imhoff to Burch pass to give CMA a 6-0 win. In a rematch at Heathwood at the end of the season, it was another cliffhanger, again having to go into overtime for the win. The defense came through again to keep Heathwood out of the end zone. On the last play of the Spartans' offensive series in overtime, Jeff Gordon made a spectacular catch off Ron Imhoff's pass to give CMA a 6-0 victory. Offensive standouts for the season included Jemel Powell, David Wamer, Mike Boiter, and Harvey Peeler. Defensive stalwarts were: David Rutledge, Mike Gerber, Shea Wilkinson, Todd Ramella, and JD Mitchell.

A very tough season describes the 7th and 8th Grade Football Team's experience. Even though their 0-5 record does not show it, the team played hard and gave their best effort. As the season progressed the players gained experience and improved. Standouts on both offense and defense were: Tim Kwiatek, Ken Davidson, Louis Baker, Brian Coleman, and Josh Estep.

Track at CMA has enjoyed a history of competition, participation, and success. The Cross Country Team is no exception to this fine tradition. While the CCT team got a late start, jumping into the season with only four competitive meets remaining, nine members ran the brass off their hats and finished third in their first meet.

This effort continued during the remaining portion of the season, and ended on an upward note by improving overall position in the PAIS by 16 points. This strong finish for the 1988-1989 team has established a lofty goal for the 1989-1990 team to accomplish. While reaching this goal will not by any means be easy to do, the job is made somewhat easier by only losing one team member to graduation. The remaining eight members will return next year and give the team some much needed depth and experience.

CMA's best ever

100 point games with 3-point bombs

A record book season, it was, en route to CMA's first conference championship in the Carolina Athletic Association.

A valiant group of seven players, calling themselves the "Hoo-siers," hustled and "fast-broke" their way to a 20-5 season. Conference mark was 10-2, and the Spartans were undefeated at home due in part to the great support of the cadet corps and the whole CMA family throughout the year.

All-Carolina first team selections Lewis Sharp and Ron Landers led the Spartan hoopsters all the way. Both seniors averaged over 20 points a game, and Sharp was state leader in rebounding, Landers, among the state leaders in assists. The combo proved to be the great 1-2 punch that most teams found unstoppable. Sharp's high game of the year was a 35 point explosion in the Spartans' thrashing of Sloan's School. Landers' was a 32 point effort against St. Jude's.

Camden skies exploded with 3-point bombs during the season, thanks to junior Happy Taylor, among the state leaders in 3-point shots, who, several times, killed opposing rallies with his deadly shooting. Taylor played his best ever in a 25 point game against Thomas Sumter.

David "Sky" Price was a clutch performer, a defensive stopper while roaming the baseline. Adjusting during the season, his scoring increased so, that he looks now to rise to Spartan star status next year.

Senior Mike Aaron provided great defense and timeless hustle when CMA needed it most. His 20 point game against Ben Lippen late in the season helped the team clinch the conference.

Center position was platooned by Marty Christensen and Neil "Action" Jackson. Top performers, each played key roles in many victories.

Coach Eric Boland's history making troops brought cheering fans to their feet when they scored 100 points in a game for the first time in CMA annals, then went on to record four such triumphs. The Spartans put Camden athletics squarely back on the winning track.

Young warriors

hoopster future source

Junior Varsity players posted a respectable 8-5 record. Though often oversized and outmanned, they rode the timely coaching of their third year gridiron tutor, Captain McElvain, to upset many favorites.

High point for the hoopsters came at Sloan's School where Spartans scored a season high 60 points in routing Sloan's by 30. Other achievements included a victory over Hilton Head, two wins over St. Jude's, and a come-from-behind overtime thriller against Ben Lippen.

Chris Witherspoon led the junior Spartans, his drives and pull-ups accounting for many Spartan points. Billy Dial and David Wamer, adept at following up shots and playing intense defense, manned the inside. Hustler of the team was Jeff Gordon who at different times played every position, each well. Other contributors included Jemel "Scruff" Powell, Mike Pettit, and Blake "Blaze" Thornton.

JV players are source for Varsity futures, and this group of young warriors gave CMA many moments to be excited about.

Rollercoaster season

Slow start leads to strong finish

The season was a wild, rollercoaster ride for the Spartan wrestling team. In twelve dual meets this season, CMA struggled to a 1-11 record. But eight of the twelve meets were against public school powerhouses, such as Lugoff-Elgin and Buford Academy.

Highlights were: a narrow loss to Cheraw before 800 spectators; Ted Dailey's two upset wins against Lugoff-Elgin's Charlie Pearson, one of the top three wrestlers in his weight class in the state; and a big win against Christ School in White Field House. Ted Daily dominated with a 14-0 record and Mike Gerber was 11-2-1.

But all of the matches against powerful teams paid off when CMA traveled to Charlotte for the Carolinas Wrestling Invitational Tournament, the unofficial state championship for independent schools. Spartan grapplers stunned several larger schools as they finished tournament championships in their weight classes, and Mike Gerber and Lonnie Broome finished second in the tournament. Kyle Curtis, John Mitchell, and Evan Samli garnered third places, and Dailey was named CWIT outstanding wrestler overall. Coach Tom Hesson brought back the runner-up trophy, first of such earned in four seasons of competition.

We are many kinds of people with very different economic, social, ethnic, cultural, and religious backgrounds. The mix makes a stimulating and mutually enriching community.

On and off campus, people will be people. Here Gregg Marlatt and JJ Campbell seem to be dangerously on track for both concealed reynard and leaping foxhunter. Actually, they're crouched beside Blue Sky's trompe l'oeil mural, celebrating the heyday of Camden's good life, adjacent to the city post office.

Class of '89

“Ashes and diamonds, foe and friend, we were all equal in the end.”

Pink Floyd

Class of 1989 members hail from California and from Maine, from Bermuda and from Ecuador, and from many other places too. Each senior is individual, but all strive for the common goal of joining the long gray line of CMA alumni. With graduation in mind, these are seniors' thoughts and expressions: Mike Aaron: “Silence is the fence of wisdom.” Revis Aaron: “Tarot cards, anyone?” Greg Baxter: “No.” Spence Benham: “The deed is done.” Marty Christenson: “Good times, bad times.” JJ Campbell: “I’m the person you were warned about.” Ted Dailey: “Sleep is the essence of life at CMA.” Patrick Davidson: “C’mon. We can get away with it.” Julio De La Guardia: “I didn’t do it, sir!” Jim Denton: “Nothing lasts forever.” James Dyal: “My only wish is that we won’t have to wait much longer before we meet again.” Marc Ely: “Want a stripe?” Jon Felice: “But I just shaved yesterday . . .” Eric Gadlage: “So far so good. So What?” Carl Gantt: “Hey, Bo!” Scott Garmon: “If it happens, it happens.” Vinnie Gibson: “The end is the beginning of a new life.” Ivan Greenwell: “But I just got a haircut.” Mark Herron: “Ashes and diamonds, foe and friend, we were all equal in the end.” (PF). Ted Hughes: “That’s what I thought.” Mike Hargett: “You only live once. But if you live it right, that’s enough.” Chris Huntington: “Education is a ticket to enjoy life.” Prescott Jordan: “If what you want doesn’t come to pass, remember, only dreams last.” Ron Landers: “Winning isn’t everything. It’s the only thing.” Chet Lightcap: “Don’t take life too seriously. You’ll never get out of it alive.” Gregg Marlatt: “To be a rock and not roll.” Pat McGraw: “There’s no place like home.” Will Mitchell: “If wishes were horses, dreamers would ride high.” David Morgan: “So long, so long. I am forever gone.” Steve Mowe: “The race is not always to the swift, but it’s to those who keep on running.” Mike Nelson: “People always ask me, ‘Why did you join the Army?’ Why not join the Army?” Ken Newcombe: “For the end, it is a new beginning.” John O’Neil: “Why not?” Bill Perdue: “Remember. This place is what you make it.” Mark Pressley: “You have got to chill.” Will Rice: “The only good shot is a cheap shot.” Steve Robinson: “What truck?” Evan Samli: “Stop calling me Swampgeese.” Ashley Saulnier: “Bye” Mike Sciulli: “It is not the end of old friendships, but the beginning of new ones.” Joe Settlemire: “Hasta luego.” David Stepp: “You know it’s wrong, but you know it’s alright.” Jay Thurston: “Waiting for the summer rain.” Andres Valdano: “Oh, my god. I’m leaving.” Rob Whitmire: “That’s what she said.”

Fellowship of the ring.

Elite

These super seniors are picks by their peers as the best of the best.

Gregg Baxter, Class Casanova, in a shot from his Chippendale's portfolio. Class Clown, James Dyal (below), is just his usual self.

"Camo'd down," Most Military Mike Nelson eagerly awaits his first escape and evasion mission, ETD: 1100, 21 May 1989. Mike Aaron, CMA's Most Athletic (below), hard in training.

Will Rice, Most Likely to Succeed, takes the easy way to wealth; the victim, JJ Campbell.

Best All Around Will Rice (right) confers with Rob Whitmire about the good old days.

Most Studious Rob Whitmire easily concentrates on five activities simultaneously as his roommate John Felice vies for his attention.

... are ubiquitous. Clockwise, top left: LTC's Cook and Watson, Major Schrader, and Mr. English, at lunch. Kitchen conference between Major Gale and Mrs. Davis. LTC Watson encounters Todd Ramella and Jon Starratt. Coach McElvain, a study in concentration. Mrs. Susie Boone, cosmetician, works on Mike Aaron. Mr. Mitchell, Development, and Mr. English, Admissions, confer. Col. Risher at lunch.

A Class by themselves.

We're concerned about the future. Already exerting influence on the course America takes, are registered voters Jon Felice, Bob Whitmire, Mike Aaron, Stephen Mowe, and Eric Gadlage.

"Has it all been worth it?" David Stepp (below right) asks Will Rice. After six years here, seventh through twelfth grades, they ought to know.

What's a heroic couplet? Seniors are right on track with their responses here. "I know! I know!" answer enthusiastic English IV students: Bill Perdue, David Morgan, Ken Newcombe, Chet (I'd rather be surfing) Lightcap, Prescott Jordan, Mike Nelson, Mike Hargett, Gregg Baxter, Patrick McGraw (nearly obscured), Steve Robinson, Scott Garmon, Julio De La Guardia, Marty Christenson.

A college prep curriculum affords cadets good grounding for higher education and for the world of work ahead. Varied extra-curricular activity supplements and builds upon academic foundations. Guidance takes root from the philosophy propounded in the eminent Alexander Pope's aphorism, "As the twig is bent, so grows the tree."

Clubs and Academics

Developing the whole man

Education goals are to develop the whole man, mentally, physically, morally. Cadets enjoy personal, ongoing contact with teachers and with staff to promote these ends. Academic framework is college preparatory, a curriculum of English, social studies, mathematics, science, and foreign language training. Small classes, such as Algebra I taught by Major Leigh Dellinger (opposite, left) and Chemistry, by Capt. Thomas Hesson (opposite, below), in the lab with Billy Dial and Jason Jesseph, provide the individual attention which enables students even with previous academic problems to succeed. Regular study periods and daily homework assignments develop self-discipline. David Stepp (bottom, left) makes the most of his studyhall and Jeremy Estroff (bottom) receives help from BJ Lathan.

Besides standard coursework, driver education and first aid training offer practical preparation for life. LTC Stephen Mowe (opposite, top right) assists a Red Cross instructor while Stephen Hayes, Beau Markolf, Tommy Brown, and Charlie Beam look on. For the musically inclined and talented, Capt. Vernon Clamp conducts band class (below) on the football field.

Club experience is frequent and satisfying something for almost everyone.

An important adjunct to classroom learning is the experience which clubs and organizations provide. Activity is frequent and satisfying.

Fine Arts Club membership is a ticket for cadets to attend cultural events on-campus and in the community beyond. Capt. Scott Sloan (opposite, top) preps the group on background before an art show visit: Davidson and Field (standing, bottom); (front) Perdue, Lightcap, Garmon; (middle) Felice Valdano, Kwiatek, Spencer; (top) Coleman, Cline, Pohlman, JR Mosier; (standing, top) Reinman, De La Guardia, Cullingford, CJ Mosier.

At the Douglas-Reed House of the Kershaw County Fine Arts Center, Damon Edmondson (far right) concurs with Rob Whitmire that $180,000 is a bit steep, even for a very good Sir Alfred Munnings oil painting. The work was included in a spectacular show of sporting art to coincide with Camden's Colonial Cup Steeplechase, November 27.

On campus, cadets volunteer for community service. Mrs. Melinda Kane, Librarian, supervises (below) Chad Mangum and Greg Ely in purging the card file. Lewis Sharp and Chris Reinman (below, left) distribute latest magazines for recreational reading at Cline Library while Jason Jesseph (below, right) shelves returned books. Time spent pays off in library training for these assistants and assures superior service for cadet patrons.

Major Dale Randolph (below right, opposite) is International Club adviser. Perusing pictures from south of the border are John Montezuma, a Colombian, resident in Singapore; Damon Saunders from Bermuda; Andres Valdano of Ecuador; Julio De La Guardia from Panama; and Alberto Montezuma, Colombian. Grouping of foreign students is informal and the club helps members establish identity in the community. Media focus on their countries makes them resident experts for background on international events.

Community service

DKS, Junior Leadership, and Key Club

Delta Kappa Sigma, honor society, is a prestige grouping of fifteen seniors and juniors, selected by faculty because of their proven leadership abilities, academic achievement, and good character. Members enjoy fellowship at their meetings and opportunities to attend cultural events and to dine out together. A major contribution by the group is semi-annual publication of the literary magazine Cadet. Members assist club adviser Major Lachicotte Zemp in screening submissions and in the processing of copy. Pictured (opposite, right) is Rob Whitmire conducting an informal meeting of DKS members Will Rice, David Stepp, JJ Campbell, Damon Edmondson, Eric Gadlage, Ted Hughes, Will Mitchell, Carl Gantt, and Mike Boiter. Major Zemp stands in back.

Junior and senior school leaders Gregg Baxter (below), Dana Lunsford (gesturing), Damon Edmondson, Mark Pressley, David Stepp, and Will Mitchell here discuss future participation in Junior Leadership sessions, a program modeled after the adult Leadership in Kershaw County. With students from other county schools, cadets listened to South Carolina Speaker of the House Robert Sheheen, City Manager Gary Cannon, and others speak about stress management, communication skills, enthusiasm, and working with a group. The Junior Leadership program helps develop student leadership skills and promotes school spirit. Community participation enables students to know each other, to recognize mutual interests and needs, and to share their concerns.

In its second year, CMAA Key Club is doing things. As part of Kershaw County's Adopt a Highway program, club members hit the shoulders of RR Route 1 north of the academy and bagged mountains of trash which littered the road. Stephen Rogers (opposite, below), Mike Yount, Steve Robinson, Scott Garmon (nearly obscured), Lonnie Broome, Mike Aaron, and Stephen Hayes (behind) pause to regroup for their next anti-litter skirmish. At an organizational meeting, Gregg Baxter, President (opposite, center), addresses members (seated) Sciulli, Herron, McDaniel, Saulnier, Osborne, Hughes, Campbell (foreground), Jackson Spencer, Robinson, Garmon, MMS Aaron, Boiter, Felice, Pressley, Hayes, and (standing) Perdue, Broome, Yount, Lunsford, adviser Capt. Hesson, JW Mitchell, Rice, Whitmire. Under discussion was the 1988-1989 Key Club international theme and major emphasis program "Commemorate Excellence," calling upon members to recognize the positive achievements of other students, to encourage uninvolved teenagers to become active in their schools and communities, and to promote a positive image of today's youth.

Key Club International's 125,000 members in 3,600 clubs worldwide provide more than six million hours of community service annually, a notable endeavor even for the world's largest high school service organization. The Key Club of Camden Military Academy is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Camden.

The scribes

newspaper and yearbook staffers work hard

The Adjutant, a weekly newspaper, and Excalibur, the yearbook, chronicle events at Camden Military Academy.

The Adjutant is a completely in-house publication, its catalyst Major Lachicotte Zemp, English teacher. Contributors are many, but the bulk of articles are from junior Honors English students. Cadets submit copy for Friday afternoon production, and publication and distribution are on Monday.

The newspaper effectively announces programmed school events and records happenings. Its stoic masthead Spartan undergoes metamorphoses on occasion to signal Thanksgiving, as a helmeted turkey, or Christmas, as an ancient Greek santa. The weekly "It's Trivia Time" challenges the quick-witted to submit answers to often probing questions, first to respond correctly, receiving a free coke and sandwich from Carlisle House canteen. The Adjutant keeps the corps informed.

The Excalibur emerges from Major Burton Gale's senior Honors English class. Lending support were Jon Felice, candid photographer, and Robby Mosier.

Yearbook copy is chiefly "committee prose," both the best portions and the gleanings of individuals' classroom assignments. Yearbook production is hard work, time-consuming and often thankless, but when cadets receive their annuals in May, providing a record of another year of Camden memories, the effort seems worthwhile.

The Adjutant Staff in action: Todd Scholl, Major Lachicotte Zemp, adviser, Scott Sperling (seated), Jim Mitchell, Michael Balducci, Kevin McDaniel, Mike Boiter, Douglas Eader, Matt Stokes.

Incidental to the academic and club scene.

Learning experiences extend beyond the parameters of the classroom, both on-campus and in the Camden community.

Being good in studyhall paid off for Harry Hanson with a visit from St. Nick, LTC Paul Cook.

Capt. Herb McElvain's view of cadet friends Joe Settlemyre, Patrick Davidson, Happy Taylor, Ron Landers — from the teacher's desk.

Working probabilities outside the classroom, Julio De La Guardia and Bill Perdue post Colonial Cup Steeplechase results.

Aero-buffs Dana Lansford and Mike McCoy marvel at one from the "big war," way back then.

Strictly . . .

Block "C"

A Block "C" jacket sets a Camden man apart, marking him as a member of the prestigious lettermen's club. Checking badges worn proudly on those jackets reveals that athletes may have lettered in three or even four different sports. Advised by Coach Eric Boland, Block "C" is distinguished company.

Eric Story and Matt Stokes man the refreshment concession stand, here for a basketball game, providing cheerful service for Ron Landers and Michael Isom.

Whitmire, Saulnier, Jackson, MS Aaron on Dial, Valdano, Lightcap on Gantt, Minelli on Gerber, Gadlage, Watts on Nakos, Marlatt, Stepp, Felice; (atop Goalpost) PO Davidson, Garmon.

Dance Committee: Byrd, JW Mitchell, LTC James Watson (adviser), De La Guardia, Valdano, Balducci, Strickland, Gadlage and Felice (on stage), Rice, Whitmire, Rowe, Huntington, Story, Gerber, Watford.

Jon Felice and date Elizabeth Rodgers sit one out at the fall hop, Visitors Day eve, November 6, 1988.

Dance Committee

You'd never know it's the gym by the time Dance Committee sets the stage for school dances. Booking bands, decorating the hall, working the party, serving refreshments, and cleaning up afterwards are all hard work, but LTC James Watson, adviser, and his committee contribute to a situation and a setting which make for nights to remember.

Back on track.

When troops are on parade and the drill sergeant notices his soldiers are out of step with the battalion, he orders: "Change step, March!" Cadets do a little skip and everything is nicely synchronized. Left becomes right and vice versa, back in step. It's been a year of change and challenge.

We're back on track.

Julio De La Guardia, Ted Hughes, Rob Strickland, and Will Mitchell are on track, at Springdale Racecourse for the 1988 running of the Colonial Cup.

Kinder, gentler . . .

CMA Community to come.

Little is immutable in our everchanging world, even here at CMA. Christmas vacation began with seniors playing Santa Claus to faculty, presenting each, at pre-holiday lunch, an imaginative present, ranging from a "check" for a million dollars for Col. Risher to a "wabbit" for LTC Eller.

Second semester commenced as George Bush launched his "just folks" presidency and Mikhail Gorbachev faced violent eruptions of nationalism in the USSR as he sought through elections a mandate for his three-pronged pitchfork of perestroika, glasnost, and demokratizatsiya. Alaska returned to media focus as the oil tanker EXXON Valdez struck Bligh Reef, the resultant spill fouling 800 miles of shoreline, devastating Prince William Sound, its crude-covered waters an environmental disaster. A terrorist bomb blew PANAM 747 Flight 103 out of Scottish skies and the Ayatollah Khomeini decreed death for writer Salman Rushdie, author of The Satanic Verses. Iran-Contra figure Oliver North prolonged his "fifteen minutes of fame," his trial ending without a bang, the whimpering just perceptible. Fever rose worldwide over cold fusion, a discovery which held potential as important as invention of the wheel. Flight of the shuttle Discovery put us back in the space race.

At Camden, John Arledge, Plant Superintendent, retired and Billy Watford, a five-year veteran here, filled the position. CSM(Ret) John Layne and Captain Keith Barlow joined the staff second semester. Key Club District 16 members elected sophomore Gary Spencer their Lieutenant Governor and Greg Baxter rated an "outstanding president" designation. CMA Voice of Democracy speech contest winner Lewis Sharp won second place in the county and third in the district while ninth grader Robby Mosier won the Kershaw County American Legion Oratorical Contest and placed second in zone competition.

An Eastern Airline strike altered many well-laid cadet travel plans at spring break, some students spending whole days in air terminals on re-routed return trips. The Advocate, an underground publication, and "The Lizard's Kingdom," circulated hand-to-hand, lifted cadet satire to new heights, but only confirmed Jonathan Swift's wry observation on human nature: "Satire is a sort of glass wherein beholders do generally discover everybody's face but their own." We depart filled with optimism for a kinder, gentler CMA community to come.

Spring sports

If sports success were measured only by contests won, the tennis team did not star, but motivation held high and a feeling of matches well played pervaded.

The golf team started their season slow with a couple losses, took up the slack, and ended the regular season 4-5-1. Highpoint was the conference tournament in Simpsonville with the Spartans placing third of six participating schools and Ashley Saulnier and David Stepp receiving All-Conference awards with scores of 83 and 79 respectively.

The baseball team had their best season in recent history, posting an 11-5 record and winning the Carolina Athletic Association Conference title. Weather conditions mixed early practice and led to an opening loss to North Central, 0-1. But after spring break Spartans Lewis Sharpe (5-3) and Gregg Marlatt (3-1) turned on the heart. Riding on the last game, against Christ School, was the conference title. Avenging an early season loss, the Spartans were victorious with a 2-1 win behind Sharp's 13 strikeouts.

Despite a 4-11 mark against other teams, the Spartan track squad enjoyed an undefeated regular conference season and a third place finish in the Carolina Athletic Association meet. Conference champs included David Price in the 100 meter dash, Ron Landers in the 100 meter hurdles, and Rob Strickland in shot put.

With a victory over Cheraw early in the season, Spartans hoped to be the soccer team to beat, but a close loss to Hammond Academy put a damper on spirits and contributed to the loss against Hilton Head the next day. Two games later the Spartans regrouped, started anew, and crushed Coastal Academy, a path to five final wins.

last weekend picked up speed.

May 21, graduation day, on the calendar all year, came on fast. The final weekend picked up speed on Saturday with company and individual drill competition at eight, followed by award ceremonies in the gym at ten, honor company parade at four, and the commencement dance at nine.

Saturday's awards program began with presentation of the Retired Officers Association Medal to Gregg Baxter for high moral character, loyalty to the school, and exceptional leadership potential. Ian Osborne received the Military Order of the World Wars Silver Medal presented to a junior for overall improvement in both scholastic and military leadership areas. That organization's Bronze Medal, for overall military excellence and leadership went to Henry Taylor; its Gold Medal, presented to the outstanding cadet in the senior class, to Will Rice. Recipient of the National Sojourners Medal, presented to the cadet displaying outstanding leadership potential, demonstrated ideals of Americanism, and high academic achievement, was Ted Hughes. For outstanding JROTC achievement and academic excellence by a junior class member, David Rutledge won the Order of the Daedalion Medal. The Veterans of Foreign Wars Medal, to a senior with outstanding military bearing, patriotism, and overall leadership potential, went to JJ Campbell. Bob Whitmire received the Daughters of the American Revolution Medal awarded to a senior of outstanding ability, achievement, dependability, and high moral character. The United States Army Recruiting Command Award was presented to Mike Nelson, a senior demonstrating leadership in extracurricular activities and a desire to enter a military career. American Legion Awards for general military excellence and citizenship went to Matthew Stokes, silver medal to a junior; and bronze to senior Patrick McGraw. Association of the United States Army Awards for leadership and high moral character were to Gary Spencer, freshman; Michael Balducci, sophomore; Ashley Saulnier, a senior in LET III; and David Stepp, LET IV. Best Drilled Cadet Award, determined by the morning's drill competition was Gregg Hill. Second and third places were to Josh Estep and Bob Whitmire. Beau Markolf won the N. S. Meyer Raeburn Award, a $100. tuition scholarship, for demonstrated outstanding personal appearance and military bearing. BJ Lathan, with only three, earned the Department Medal for the cadet with fewest demerits all year.

Superior Cadet Awards for outstanding participation in Leadership Education and Training (LET I through IV) were Robby Mosier, Kevin McDaniel, Will Mitchell, and Will Rice. JJ Campbell received the Commandant's Award, presented to the most outstanding cadet in the school, other than the battalion commander.

For the second consecutive year, "A" earned Honor Company distinction.

In the scholastic realm, JJ Campbell and Bob Whitmire received Presidential Academic Fitness awards. In debate, Doug Eader was most improved and Robby Mosier earned coach's award. Bobby Simmons received the E. Haines Gregg Award for musical accomplishment, and Dana Lunsford won the John Philip Sousa Award in band, a peer selection. Included in Who's Who in American Music are Dana Lunsford, Jim Denton, and Scott Garmon.

Named Scholar-Athlete was Will Rice; Athlete of the Year, Ron Landers. In football, most valuable player was Ron Landers; most valuable offensive back, Lonnie Broome; offensive lineman, Michael Isom; defensive back, Neil Jackson; defensive lineman, Ted Dailey; most improved, Scott Serpas. Coaches Award went to Evan Samli. In cross country, most valuable was Vince Minelli; most improved, Brian Latture; and receiving Coach's Award was Mike Nelson. Most valuable basketball player was Lewis Sharp; offensive, Ron Landers; defensive, Mike Aaron; most improved, Happy Taylor. Coach's Award winner was David Price. In wrestling, Ted Dailey was most valuable; Shea Wilkinson, most improved; and coach's award winner was BJ Lathan. Lewis Sharp was most valuable baseball player; Craig Garges, offense; Happy Taylor, defense; Danny Laird, most improved. Coach's Award went to Kevin McDaniel and Ted Hughes won the E. Haines Gregg Sportsmanship Award. Barratt Burch was most valuable soccer player; Mike Aaron, offense; Chris Nakos, defense; Eric Gadlage, most improved. Jon Felice copped the coach's award. In tennis, Allen Watford, coach's award winner, was most valuable, and Tracy Sanders, most improved. Ted Dailey was most valuable track team member; Carlton Walker, most improved. Earning coach's award was Hutter Ragland. Rifle team recognition went to Jay Thurston, most valuable; Mark Herron, most improved. Coach's award was to Ian Osborne; the E. Haines Gregg Sportsmanship Award to Scott Haskell. Most valuable golf team member for the fourth consecutive year was David Stepp; Chad Mangum was most improved. Coach's award recipient was Ashley Saulnier.

At Sunday morning's nine o'clock Senior Dress Parade, well-organized Class of '89 pranksters provided fellow grads with tassels for their caps and, on signal, seniors affixed them with alligator "roach" clips and marched forward to be honored at their final review.

At ten in the gym, Rev. Louie C.

McDonald, youth pastor at First Baptist Church of Camden, was a commencement speaker to emulate. He analyzed his audience, spoke their language, and held their attention throughout his presentation, in spite of sultry heat. Awards and recognition continued through the graduation ceremony. Gold Star awards for students with 90.0 averages or above for the second semester went to MS Aaron, Balducci, Barnett, Brook, JJ Campbell, Christenson, Eader, Edmondson, Flanagan, Gantt, Hughes, Jordan, Landers, LeVine, McDaniel, Mosier, Osborne, Pote, Reinman, Rice, Saulnier, Sciuilli, Spencer, Stokes, Wamer, and Whitmire. Recognized for highest class averages were: JB Thornton, seventh grade; CJ Reinman, eighth; JR Mosier, ninth; M. Balducci, tenth; KD McDaniel, eleventh; RV Whitmire, twelfth. WR Rice earned second highest average among seniors, JJ Campbell, third.

Cadet LTC William R. Rice was commended for his service as Battalion Commander and Robert V. Whitmire received the coveted James F. Risher Award, a peer selection which recognizes the senior most nearly exemplifying the ideal cadet. Col Risher presented diplomas, "Taps" sounded, and 42 graduates and five seniors who will complete requirements at the end of summer school marched out to "Pomp and Circumstance," into alumni ranks. A final order for dismissal of the corps signalled end of the school year.
