

CHALLENGE TO THE SENIORS

With graduation nearing and our high school education ultimately reaching its completion, our thoughts turn toward the questionable destiny of the future. Will there be happiness and prosperity for us to share or darkness and despair? Will we live to enjoy a normal life's span or will it be slighted by some unforeseen fate?

As "depression babies," these questions face us without an apparent solution. Our next step is uncertain. The decision as to what course we shall take remains unknown. Our character must be molded or our lives will be in the hands of an uncontrollable faculty.

We, the Seniors of 1954, will depart from this institution keeping in mind those habits of character which are most respected. We will help other less fortunate men in building their's accordingly. Our character will be built for God. It will be made four-square, with a spiritual side, a moral side, a mental side, and a physical side.

We will take advantage of all favorable opportunities, always considering our fellow man's wants and desires.

Our deeds will be as seeds of fate, sown here on earth, but bringing forth their harvest in eternity.

Our burdens will be lifted by a sound faith in God.

As minute parts of an infinitely large universe, we will study to have ourselves approved as workmen who need not be afraid or ashamed.

In all things, the standards and virtues of life set by our forefathers will be practiced and preserved, and then bestowed upon future men for the building of a better world.

Above all, God's word will serve as a comforting guide, leading us out of the darkness and valleys of despair, up to the bright plateaus of hope and happiness.

Yes, we, the Senior Class of 1954, will so live as to glorify the Kingdom of God.
