

Must Be Doin' Something Right

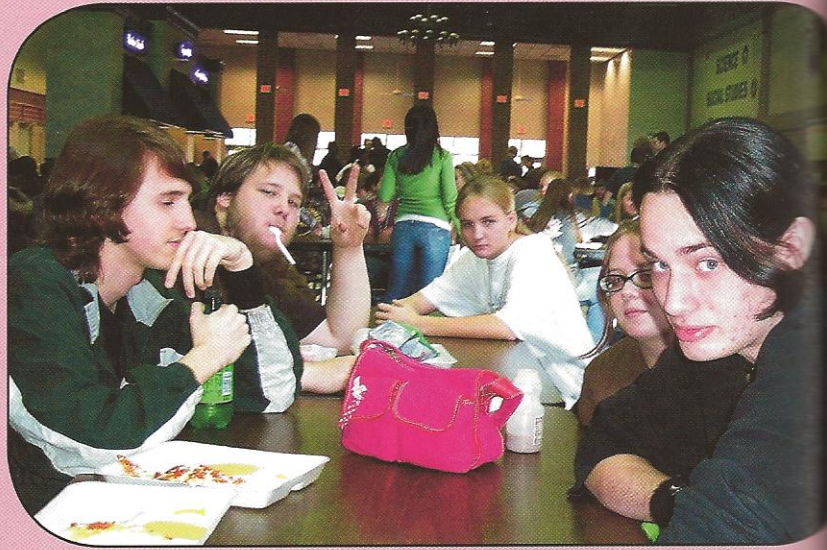

Relationships, Relationships, Relationships, Relationships

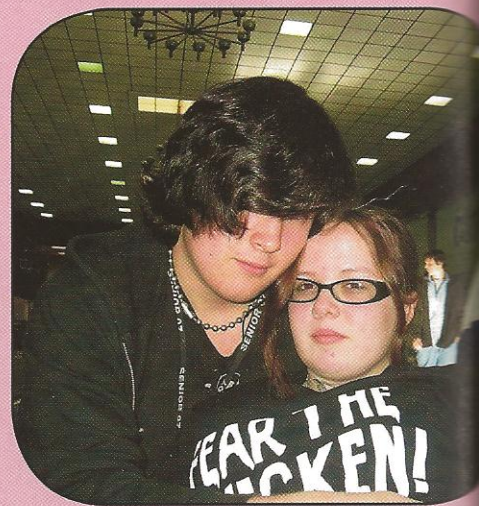

Sitting together watching the Carolina vs. Clemson game, sophomore Rebecca Herndon and her sister cheered for Clemson. Rebecca had a strong relationship with her sister. "I can always talk to her and chill with her," Rebecca said.

Although memories fade and trends die out, the one lasting thing in life are relationships. Romantic or family orientated the many typical relationships played a big part of our lives. They've helped students to be better people and to care about others. They show students that they needed other people in order to have a happy life. Believing that relationships and connections have special influences, senior Shacohn Brown viewed relationships as "Special things." Relationships can also be very family orientated. "The only valuable lasting relationship is family," senior Epifinia Taylor said.

-Charles McCarter

Senior Joshua Alberti sat at lunch with his friends to catch up on their day. "I feel a strong bond with all my friends," Joshua said.

Senior Derek Brett and girlfriend sophomore Catherine Rogers showed affection during lunch. "I feel a strong bond with my girlfriend because she understands me," Derek said.

