Sports Medicine

“The Sports Medicine program at Colleton County High School is improving and heading in the right direction,” Ms. Wayne said. “There are three classes for students to take as well as the opportunity to work as a student athletic trainer, assigned to a specific team,” she continued to explain. “I am excited to see the future accomplishments of the students,” she finished.

Amanda Warner and Holly Woodcock helped Brantley Wiggins off the practice field after his injury. “I like being a trainer because I like seeing the injuries and I love sports,” senior Amanda Warner said.

Tiffany Gatch and Ashley Chickering prepared the drinks for the football players during a practice. “I wanted to be an athletic trainer because I thought it would be a good experience, and I was right,” sophomore Tiffany Gatch said.
