

Following the Leader

NJROTC

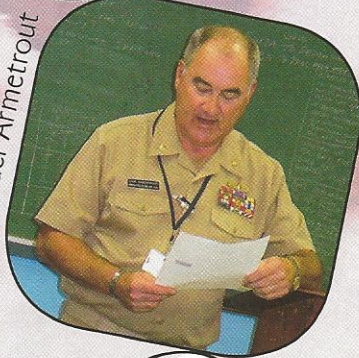

"I feel like the most important lessons that I have learned are to never give up, be respectful, and be responsible at all times," freshman Henry Washington said.

CWO3 Gunner Williams

Although their reasons for joining varied, the cadets all had a common goal to better their futures. Many of the cadets joined to get out of health classes or because of parental persuasion. However, many stayed in because they enjoyed the program so much. NJROTC has had a positive influence on the student cadets and has helped them to better their future.

Lt. Commander Armetrout

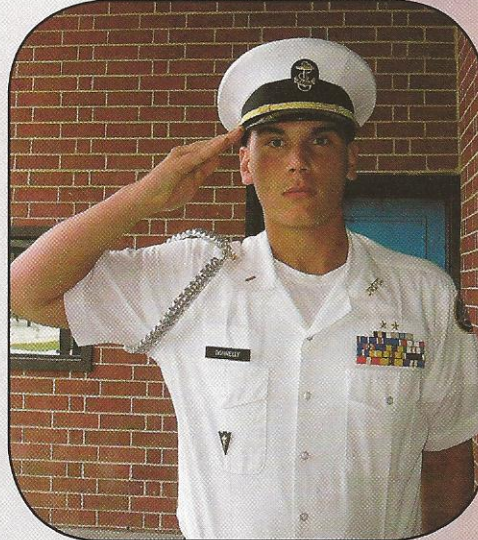

There were many cadets that joined the various teams offered by the NJROTC program, such as Armed Drill Team, Athletic Team, Color Guard, Orienteering, the RifleTeam, and Unarmed Drill Team, which helped the cadets grow in the program.

The Battalion Cadet Commander Lamar Hodges and Battalion Executive Officer Raymond French have lead this years Battalion with much success. They both worked very hard, not only as the leaders of the Battalion, but also as the drill team commanders for Armed and Unarmed Drill Teams.

-Callie O'Connor

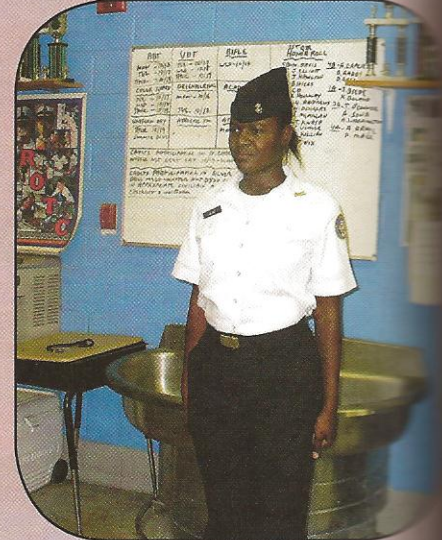

Veteran's Day

Color Guard in Parade

Giving respect to a passing officer, junior Robert Donnelly saluted Lt. Commander Armetrout as he walked by. "I joined NJROTC to get the experience and I really like it. Now I think I would like to join the Marines," Robert said.

Standing at attention, freshman Aziza Glast waits to get inspected. "I plan on joining the Army after staying in for the four years...It's not as hard as everyone thinks and I really enjoy it," Aziza said.