

1. Although he loved the game and felt he was born for it, senior Marcus Peacock didn't intend to play in college. "I want to play football in college and then play professionally," he said.

2. Falling in love with the sport at a young age, junior Darien Campbell stuck with basketball. "I started playing in 4th grade and I've played ever since. I like playing because it's fun and I just enjoy it," he said.

3. A seasoned and experienced player, senior Elijah Montrell Tucker could be described as a connoisseur, at the least. "I've been playing basketball for 6 years [with schools]. I play because I love competing and I just love the game," Montrell said.

4. Working hard and pulling strength from the drive to win and a hyped crowd, sophomore Daval Johnson excelled at the sport and received many accommodations. "One of my greatest accomplishments is being 15 on the varsity squad and my offensive player of the year award," Daval said.

Let's Take This Into Overtime

Driven by sheer will and adrenaline, the Varsity Basketball players worked hard through a season that could be described as rocky at best. Although coming up short on some occasions, the team came from each game more experienced and with a heightened sense of trust in one another. Every player worked hard and contributed their skill and knowledge of the game to the team.

Some players were newbies to the varsity team, while others were veterans in every sense of the word. "I think I've been playing since I was four," senior Marcus Peacock said. The majority of the players held the same feeling. The team boasted savant and other skilled players such as sophomore Daval Johnson worked eagerly and earned a position on the Varsity team. The diligent players on the team combined their skill and talent to produce a unique and first-class squad.

--Epifania Taylor