

Comments

Extinguishing the flame of excitement for social networking sites, Laura Linkous attempted to show a student the error of her ways. "People spend too much time on Myspace," senior Laura said.

Admiring the beautiful arrangement welcoming students and despondent parents to the main office, freshmen John Payne took time to reflect on the technological advancements of our time. "MySpace has helped me connect with more of my friends," John said.

Implementing the standard broken by those who think red means go, sophomore Shannon Beckett stood up to the notion that MySpace stunts intellectual growth and social awareness. "MySpace lets me talk to my friends. I put pictures, videos, and songs on there," Shannon said.

James Padget, enjoying his game of hide and seek, explains his view of Myspace. "I get on MySpace every night," sophomore James said.

1.

2.

3.

Troy Lee 9
Carroll Martin 10

Sarah Liles 10
Kwane Moore 10

Jesse Lynch 9
Justin Myers 11

Keyrod Nixon 11
Jacob Watts 9

Joseph Pugliesi 10
Jason Wilson 11

Francis Terrapin 9

Keyrod Nixon 11
Jacob Watts 9

Joseph Pugliesi 10
Jason Wilson 11

Francis Terrapin 9

Keyrod Nixon 11
Jacob Watts 9

Joseph Pugliesi 10
Jason Wilson 11

1. Demonstrating how students can explore a plethora of new places after high school, senior Tyrell Hills looks for treasure in the most unlikely places. "It is kind of risky to have a MySpace page because all of your impertinent information is out there for the world to see," Tyrell said.
2. Proving that expanding the mind can be just as strenuous as physical labor, Michael Travis rests his eyes before the next class. "MySpace is great and everyone should have one," freshmen Michael said.
3. Keeping up with the latest gossip, senior Raymond Riles keeps his mind keen by reading in the Media Center. "MySpace has a lot of drama so I don't get online a lot. I prefer to spend my time doing other things," Raymond said.