Sophomore Sierra Tippins was outside the Commons Area waiting for the bell to ring to go to first period. "The only class I can think of that I'd take that most girls wouldn't take is auto mechanics," Sierra said.

Sierra's Friends

Sophomore Stephanie Ard talked to her friends during third lunch in the commons area "I think the school should offer a bible class as an elective," Stephanie said.

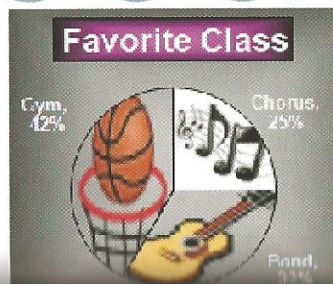

Gabrielle Price laughed with her friends during fourth lunch. "French is going to help me out the most, because it will help me communicate with people I'm going to work with," sophomore Gabi said.

Leaving The Books Behind

The students all knew that math and English were important and that they needed them to help them succeed in everyday life, but after a while those classes got pretty boring! Elective classes helped the students get out of our every day routine and they got a chance to do something fun. CCHS had everything from welding classes to nursing classes offered as electives. Elective classes gave us practice at a potential jobs, a chance to learn new things, and gave a break from the "everyday" classes.
