Anna Crosby was outside the Commons Area at lunch talking with some of her friends during fourth lunch. "I think study hall is pointless. They should let those students be teacher's assistances and actually give them something to do," sophomore Anna said.

Sophomore Pedro Guillen was working hard in his second period Spanish class. "I think the foreign language classes are important because you need to be able to speak different languages for certain jobs," Pedro said.

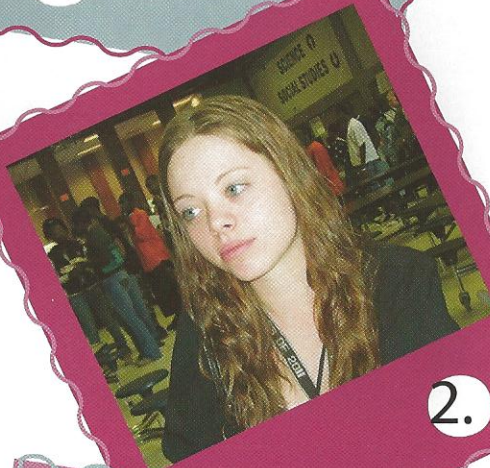

Junior Amber Garvin was talking on the phone to her friend Ashley outside after school. "I think the best elective class I've taken so far is health science," Amber said.

During lunch freshman Michael Travis thought about how his classes now may affect his future later. "ROTC will probably help me after I get a job because it teaches me discipline and organization," Michael said.

1. Junior Troy Farmer tried to concentrate on his thoughts as his friends joked around during second lunch. "I think most kids like taking gym classes because it's basically a free period," Troy said.
2. Taylor Garris sat at her table during third lunch trying to get her stuff together before her next class. "Electives help in the long run because if you take the right classes they'll help you with your career," sophomore Taylor said.
3. Sophomore Matthew Wolf was playing around with his friends in the Commons Area at lunch. "Electives are important because they give you more experience and more job opportunities," Matthew said.
