

Comments

Looking for her lost homework through the peephole of the classroom door, Maria Burgos expressed her feelings about a project she was given. "The worst project I ever recieved was the close grid project in art. It was the devil and I got a 40," junior Maria said.

Riding his big boy bike in the Wal-Mart, junior Gunther Hahn gave his excuse for not turning in homework. "My gold fish ate it," Gunther said.

In the front of the School, freshman Jerome McWilliams leaped off the bench. "I do all my homework on the computer and e-mail it to my teachers," Jerome said.

Crista Mack was one of the many juniors that was able to enjoy her experience in school this year. She also enjoyed telling all her friends who were only a phone call away. "The friend that was doing my homework didn't give it back to me," senior Crista said.

1.

2.

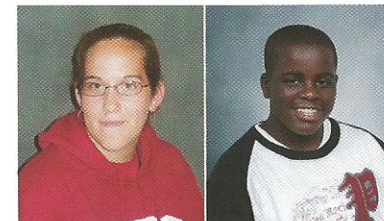

3.

Paul Roberts 11 Janashia Robinson 11 Ericka Ruth 9
Jonathon Salazar 10 Rebecca Sammons 9 Amber Sanders 9

Rebecca Seigler 9 Lauren Standiford 11 Shi'Tremer Thompson 10
Danielle Vanhulst 11 Everett Williams 10

1. Chenoa Roberts explained how the amount of homework given affected her. "I think homework is important to a certain extent. I don't think they should give us too much homework, but it helps if you're having trouble in that class," senior Chenoa said.

2. After eating lunch, Sherilyn Phillips gave her opinion about summer reading. "I enjoy reading books for summer reading, but not writing papers on them," sophomore Sherilyn said.

3. In the Commons Area, Jessica Avant expressed her frustration with summer reading, "I hate summer reading. I like reading but most of the books chosen for summer reading are boring," senior Jessica said.