

Alter Your Future

JAG is an organization that stands for Jobs for America's Graduates. The JAG program began in 2009 at Colleton County High School and prepared students for the working environment. Senior Kayanie Williams said, "Most people think JAG is for troubled students, but it's not. It's for students who want to go somewhere in life, who don't have the means to do it themselves." The graduating class of 2013 was the first class brought into the JAG program, and the first JAG class out into the work force. These former students will have no problem in the real world, for the JAG program has prepared them well.

1. Channel 2 News stops by CCHS and interviews several different students from JAG.

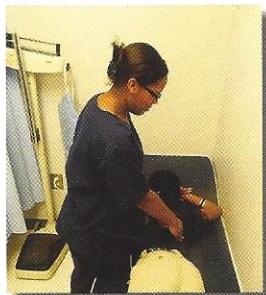

2. Students in JAG take notes at a college tour. This college tour was at the University of South Carolina in Columbia.

3. After one of their several college tours, the JAG group decides to eat lunch at a local Italian restaurant.

4. In November, students in JAG take a college tour through Claflin University in Orangeburg.

Junior Terele Samuels has been in JAG for one year. He said, "JAG is a very helpful experience. It teaches you how to conduct yourself in a business-like manner."

Junior Sha'Kema Middleton practices on a fellow JAG student for her health occupations class.

A part of the JAG class takes a class picture. Students in JAG say that they really like the program.

Senior Nichole Williams helps at a charity event. JAG students often volunteered to help with community events.