

Seizing the Green

Although golf has been an admired American pastime for years, this generation's youth may overlook it. Some tend to question golf because they know little to nothing about the sport. "Everyone else plays the normal sports: football, basketball, and baseball. Not many have tried golf," said sophomore Yunus Miller. They may be small in number, but our golfers do not let quantity intimidate them. Amount does not always come into play because it is a game between "man" and "course." While wrking hard to stay focused and trying their best to steadily improve, there is no doubt that the golf team will continue to succeed and grow, in years to come.

Golf members sophomores Yunus Miller and Andrew McCaskill, and freshmen Zachary Lowery and Zack Armentrout ready themselves for the course.

1.

2.

3.

4.

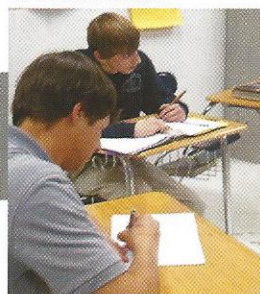

5.

1. Freshmen Zachary Lowery and Zack Armentrout converse before their next round of intense golf.
2. Sophomore Andrew McCaskill winds up and keeps his eye on the ball as the competitors observe.
3. Freshman Zack Armentrout keeps his eye on the ball before he makes his next move.
4. Sophomore Yunus Miller putts the ball from about twenty feet away on the lush, green golf course.
5. Freshman Zachary Lowery gathers his thoughts and devises a shot strategy before making his next swing.

Sophomore Yunus Miller said "Not many have tried golf, there's only five of us."

Sophomore Andrew McCaskill works hard in class. He knows that golf is a sport that takes a lot of concentration.

Freshman Zachary Lowery said, "I take it as both a sport and a good way to calm down."

Before this season, sophomore Yunus Miller had no experience on the green, but found golf increased his self-confidence.

