

Closing

This year, I believe our school has grown closer as a family. The tragedies and accomplishments of our students and staff really brought us all together in unity. Our yearbook staff set out to publish a successful yearbook by becoming involved with school activities and taking part in events. With the help of the amazing students, we are very proud of our production thus far, and I am positive we will be proud of it in the end. The yearbook, as a team, strove to provide the student body with the most memorable reflections of the past school year. Looking back and admiring your past is a part of growing up. Making the yearbook something you enjoy to flip through over and over is the biggest accomplishment we could ever achieve. The yearbook is truly a book chock-full of memories. Memories will always be kept away somewhere safe, whether they are good or bad. We will always encourage you to capture your memories and keep them dear to you, for you will never relive them.

"Do not dwell in the past, do not dream of the future, concentrate the mind on the present moment."
