When one is describing oneself, what words are to be used? Happy...Outgoing...Athletic? Or, perhaps, the description will be based upon an anticipated future? Doctor... College graduate... World changer. Will another look to the personality and the mind to describe himself or herself? Intelligent... Eager... Hardworking. When looking back to this moment in time, how should it be remembered? These descriptive terms shape identity and what individuals will become. Truly, it is more than words. With everything used to describe oneself, what is the most important part? Is it the memories? Is it the people who bring high school to life? Cherish the moments and let them become a part of one's whole self, for THAT is who we are.
