

BUILD ON TRADITION//

1. Sophomore Niasha Green poses for a picture after motivational practice for the NJROTC's Athletic Team.
2. The Armed Drill Team practices for REP performance.
3. Freshmen Shatterria Mays, Merrick Bennett, and Paulina SanJuan are proud NJROTC cadets.

NJROTC

Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps is a leadership program designed to give students a head start in life. NJROTC helps develop leadership skills, self-discipline and self-confidence. The curriculum and instructional activities are designed to develop leadership, regardless of career path or educational goal. The program instills respect for everyone, starting with Commanders and fellow cadets. Other major factors taught in addition to respect are discipline, humility, loyalty, honesty, honor, and confidence. Within the Colleton County High School's NJROTC program, Senior Chief Battle and Chief Warrant Officer Williams teach their cadets how to use self-discipline beyond the NJROTC classroom and beyond the walls of CCHS.

"If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader."

RIGHT: Devoted Freshman Jamie Hyman working hard alongside her teammates during a hard afternoon of practice.
BELOW: The Armed Drill Team presenting for the eighth graders at REP.

LEADERSHIP//
 Chief Warrant Officer-3 Roger "Gunner" Williams (left) and Senior Chief Pernell Battle (right) represent the strong leadership that is an important role in NJROTC.

FIT MIND & BODY//
 The Athletic Team pauses to pose after a hard afternoon of practice, staying fit doing sprints, push-ups, pull ups, mountain climbers and more.

ALLEGIANCE//
 The dedicated NJROTC Color Guard present at their yearly REP session.