

(Left to Right) 1. Drum Major Megan Newton (1 1), on her riser, conducts the Band of Blue to keep everyone in time. 2. Curtis Nesmith (1 2) says of his last year experience in band, "All your hardwork and dedication means nothing without the same effort from all the members of band." 3. Another Band of Blue's Drum Major, Miriam Yale (1 2), also conducts the band. Their leadership is one of many reasons these players are so successful with the show and this season's performances.

Drumline: The heart and bass of the band. The drumline keeps the tempo of the music. They're also the reason you want to clap and dance when the Band of Blue starts playing!

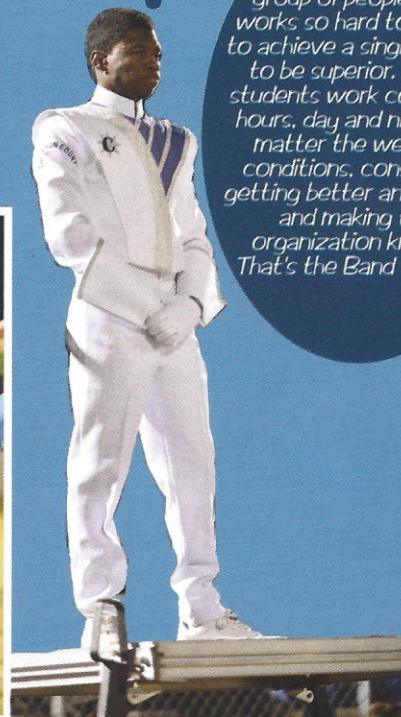

Robert Adams (1 1, Left) and Deondre Way (1 1, Right) have been in band for 7 years now, starting in 6 grade.

CHS Band of Blue

I've never seen a group of people that works so hard together to achieve a single goal-- to be superior. These students work countless hours, day and night, no matter the weather conditions, constantly getting better and better and making the organization known. That's the Band of Blue.
