

YOUNG AGENTS OF CHANGE

Young Agents of Change is a social entrepreneurship program that is meant to help our youth to see problems in the community as opportunities. This program provides them with the tools to build skills in critical and creative thinking as well as communication skills. It enables them to believe that they are capable of being leaders, entrepreneurs, and world changers. During the school year, the club members are engaged in many activities, such as raising money and holding canned food drives to give to the people in need. Giving back to the community and helping those in need are the major objectives of members of the ever-thoughtful Young Agents of Change Program.

Young Agents of Change senior officers Olivia Phillips, Anni Crook, and Madison Lord pose and show off their superhero smiles.

Members of the Young Agents of Change, along with advisor Ms. Bria Burke (back right) pose for their group photograph to show off their new t-shirts, an honor that these students wear well because it shows how they've helped the community.

Freshmen Kayla Dantzler enjoys playing games and helping with the elderly at the Colleton Courtyard nursing home.

L: Sophomore Teniia Brown plays bingo with the elderly at the Colleton Courtyard nursing home. Sometimes time and a smile are as important as a monetary gift.

R: Senior Curtis Nesmith and Freshmen Emmalie Nesmith enjoy and assist in wrapping Christmas presents for local children.

Seniors, Olivia Phillips, Keeley Murdaugh, and Campbell Crook wrap Christmas presents to give to local children.