

NJROTC

THE BEGINNING OF A NEW ERA!

NJROTC, or Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps, is a leadership program designed to give you or your son/daughter a head start in life. NJROTC develops discipline, self-confidence, and leadership skills to help you or your son/daughter successfully meet life's challenges along the road. NJROTC offers several extracurricular activities such as drill team competitions, color guard performances, air rifle training, and academic competitions. It does not mean that you are going to war or fighting for nothing. NJROTC helps you serve your country and doing everything they can to protect us from danger.

WHO?

The 2018-19 NJROTC has undergone many positive behind-the-scenes changes in a short amount of time. Last year, the program struggled with changes in instructors and with the performance of its students. This year has seen a new beginning for NJROTC, now under the leadership of PR1 Hutchens, who returned from last year, and the newly appointed LTC. DePinto. The strong team formed by these two has breathed new life into the NJROTC Program, and it shows because the overall improvement is dramatic. Let's watch them grow!

TRADITION

CELEBRATING

EXERCISE

(R) Each day the team of NJROTC students go out side and run and prepare for fitness. Their leaders expect greatness out of them no matter what happens.

SENIOR CADET PAULINA SANJUAN, JUNIOR CADET ZAHARA ELISON, AND SOPHOMORE CADET DONALD HUNEHAUF, AND THE REST OF THE NJROTC CLASS, ENDURING HEAVY PRESSURE AS THEY PARTICIPATE IN PT. BEING FIT AND READY FOR ACTION IS IMPORTANT TO A CADET'S GROWTH.
