

OFF WE GO!!

We all come to school to learn, but not everything can be learned in the classroom. Good education involves being well rounded in a variety of areas. One way in which to enhance student's learning is field trips. Field trips allow students to see first hand the things they learn in the classroom.

In November, the 6th grade took a field trip to Medieval Times in Myrtle Beach. Medieval Times is a good lesson for history because it deals with feudalism and the Middle Ages. The Junior Class traveled to Fort Sumter in Charleston. There, they were able to see many artifacts from the beginning of the Civil War.

Wonder what's behind this door? Jess Clamp, Amy Nettles, and Mary-Margaret White try to sneak in the door at Fort Sumter.

The sixth grade and their teacher, Beth Smoak, stops from their busy activities at Medieval Times to take a group picture.

One of the many things that the Juniors saw on their field trip to Fort Sumter were the different flags of the Civil War era.
