

The End of the millenium leaves students thinking

So Little Time, So Much To Do!

We all desire to see it happen within our lifetime. Few of us are fortunate to experience it twice. Experiencing the end of the Millennium and watching as a new one dawns allows us to remember the events of the years gone past, embark on new journeys of the present, and to contemplate our future. The Senior class of 1999 looked back on memorable times and hard work as they prepared to become the first college class of the new Millennium. The remaining students looked forward with anticipation to experiences that would prepare them for the year 2000 and beyond.

The entire CPA student body shows that hanging out in the hall waiting for tornado warnings to stop can be fun.

Tindall Pryor, Brook Baggerly, and Kallie Drawdyn show that time together really is time spent well.

Senior Chris Zipperer and Junior Brian Grievara anxiously wait with the rest of their classmates for the next class to begin.
