As the newest additions to the Middle School, the 6th graders were uncertain about the obstacles they would face, but soon fell neatly into their routine.

These determined students faced challenges such as different schedules and harder subjects. Along with the obstacles came many privileges which were warmly embraced such as changing classes, eating outside, and playing sports.

The young future leaders in the sixth grade patiently wait for the bell to ring.

Mike enjoys his lunch and a chance to be out of class.

Smiles help these girls make it through the day.
