

"Our memories of yesterday will last a lifetime. We'll take the best forget the rest, and someday we'll find these are the best of times" -Styx

Emily,

I think this quote pretty much sums it up. We've been through a lot over the years. Both good and bad memories have been made that we'll probably remember forever. Looking back now, I wouldn't change a thing because I've realized that who we are is a result of all the good and bad choices we've made and what we've learned from them. I think this year we all learned that people change, whether they admit it or not. We've both laughed, cried, and yelled a lot. But I have to say that there are way more good times that stick out in my mind than the bad. You've been my best friend for years, and even though things change, you will always be my best friend. Always remember who you are and know that everything happens for a reason: what's meant to be, will be... and what's not meant to be, won't. I'll love you always Em. You are my best friend.

Love,
Meg
