

Wes,

We have grown up together; you have brought so much joy to my life. You were an unexpected gift from God, you changed my life. You have not always understood the decisions that I have made for you, but they have created the well -respected, sensitive, young man that you have become. You try to play "tough guy," but I know the size of your heart, I've seen it broken. I know the burdens that you choose to carry to save the feelings of others. Your graduation is a special time for both of us. To me it is a day of accomplishment, to you this is a time of freedom and maturity, but with these come responsibility for yourself and those around you. Be a leader, remember you have five sets of younger eyes watching everything that you do, wanting to be just like you. Never be too quick to make decisions or be provoked to anger. You've been a good kid, you will be a good man. Let God lead you in all things, never make decisions big or small without His guidance. He will never leave you, He will hold you when I can't. Rise above the ways of the world and remember the things that you have been taught. Respect authority and fear the Lord, I love you Wes Moo!

Mommie

