

Amanda Brooke Lemacks

Dear Amanda,

Wow - It is hard to believe you are a Senior. It seems like yesterday you were our LITTLE curly blonde haired girl running all around and laughing. Now you are a beautiful young lady graduating from high school.

In your short life, God has definitely presented you with challenges that have made you look at the world in a whole new light. You have met these challenges and started anew. May you always hold dear the kindness expressed by others and continue to return the same as you have always done. Never forget to have Faith and God will see you through.

As you close this chapter in your life and begin a new one, we want you to know how incredibly proud you have made us. You have a kind-hearted, generous spirit that soars. Each day that passes brings new adventures that you meet with eagerness and a willingness to carry on. You can certainly accomplish anything you set out to do as you have proven over and over. Set sail on this new adventure and enjoy college. Find the right niche for you, dream big, and never underestimate yourself.

Always know we love you with all of our hearts and that you will forever be 'Our Little Girl'!

Love,
Mom and Dad
